Florida Officials Demand Action To Cut Down Smog

MIAMI (AP) — Dade County officials, angry after five days of a choking blanket of industrial smog from Ohio, Pennsylvania and Tennessee, demanded Wednesday immediate action by the federal government and the states to shut down the polluters.

"The pollution flow is a threat to Dade County and its citizens," said Dade pollution control chief Peter Baljet. "It has got to be stopped now."

He said steel mills and other "heavy industries in Ohio and the Tennessee Valley as well as Pennsylvania seem to be among the polluters, but I can't name specific firms yet as this is still under study by my office."

Baljet said Dade County officials would not contemplate taking legal action until the federal environmental agency and the states named had a chance "to respond," which he indicated would be at least several days.

The National Weather Service said it tracked clouds of dirty brown smogstack emissions last week as they rode air currents into Florida from the three states.

"It even showed up in photos from the space satellite used in checking weather patterns," said forecaster Vaughn Carmichael.

From Sunday to Thursday, the pollution was trapped at ground level by a temperature inversion, and most of peninsula Florida was blanketed in a haze. The smog led to an increase in respiratory attacks and admissions to hospitals, officials said.

In one of a series of letters, Baljet asked pollution control directors of the three states to "immediately make use of your power and authority to order cessation of operations causing such conditions."

Baljet also asked them to furnish his office with their master plans for meeting air quality standards dictated by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Another letter to EPA Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus said the evidence was clear in satellite photos where the pollution came from, and urged his agency to start injunctive action against the offenders.

Baljet asked the area's two Democratic congressmen, Dante Fascell and Claude Pepper, and Sen. Lawton M. Chiles Jr., D-Fla., to institute immediate action to stop "the dumping of waste products from northern states over Dade County and the state of Florida." And he appealed to Gov. Reubin Askew to look into the issue and use the powers of his office to protect the state from such pollution.

Under the Environmental Policy Act, the county could go to court to seek injunctions against out-of-state polluters, Baljet said, adding it would do so if "the administrative route failed."

Rogers Gets Green Light For Conference From NATO

BONN, Germany (AP) — The North Atlantic allies sent Secretary of State William P. Rogers back to President Nixon Wednesday with the green light for a major conference. The meeting would rethink the system of European security and cooperation set up after World War II.

With France standing aside, they also agreed to make a new bid to the Soviets for talks on mutual and balanced force reductions in Europe. Rogers told reporters the Soviets sincerely want to start these talks, too, through the wider security conference is the Kremlin's top European goal.

Some Western leaders doubt Soviet readiness for the force reduction talks. The Western allies made their first offer four years ago for talks about mutual troop withdrawals.

These allies said Wednesday force reduction talks should start first, or at least at the same time as the wider discussions. But Rogers said: "We want to be sure not to lay down preconditions."

Representatives of the 15 allies spent a day and a half discussing East-West relations. Such meetings are held twice a year by foreign minister of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization—NATO.

It is now likely that diplomats from about 35 countries, including the United States and the Soviet Union, will meet in Helsinki not long after the U.S. election in November. Their job, said, the NATO ministers, will be to make sure that Western proposals get full consideration and that there is enough common ground for a reasonable expectation of satisfactory results from a big get-together of foreign ministers.

The United States has insisted that talks on force reductions be kept strictly out of this broad security and cooperation conference. It wants to talk about European force reductions with "just those nations whose troops and territories are involved." That would probably keep the participants below 10.

But France, which does not want to join in talks about troop reductions, still wants some military matters discussed at the wider talks. So do some other West European countries, whose representatives say it would be absurd to have a security conference with no discussion of troops.

$45.8 Million Okayed For Nonpublic Schools

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The House Wednesday passed four bills providing $45.8 million in state aid to nonpublic schools.

The bills, which were sent to the Senate, would expand state financed busing of nonpublic school pupils, force public schools to lend textbooks to private institutions and require the state to pay for services such as guidance counseling and special testing.

Chief sponsor was Rep. Martin P. Mullen, D-Philadelphia, who headed two attempts in the past to aid nonpublic schools. One attempt, to provide direct aid to nonpublic schools, was ruled unconstitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court last summer. The other plan, to reimburse parents with children in nonpublic schools, is currently tied up in another court case.

Nonpublic school enrollment is 476,000, Mullen said. Most of it is in parochial schools.

Mullen hailed the House action as "a genuine effort to solve the problem of helping out parents who send their children to nonpublic schools."

The present Parent Reimbursement Fund, amounting to $48 million, "apparently is going to be declared unconstitutional," Mullen said, "so we came up with another program. We feel this one is constitutional."

Each of the four bills was approved overwhelmingly, without any debate on the merits of nonpublic school aid. The affirmative votes ranged from 133-49 to 166-18.

At present, state aid to nonpublic schools is limited to busing of private school students along the same routes used by those going to public schools. When public school is not in session, no transportation is offered to private students.

The House voted to expand the busing program to allow full transportation of nonpublic students, even in cases where their schools lay 10 miles outside the public school district in which they live.

New school bus routes would be permitted to take nonpublic school students directly to their institution. The cost of the measure was estimated at $15 million.

Another measure would direct the Secretary of Education to provide an estimated cost of $16.6 million the nonpublic schools with secular and other educational materials, to be shunted to the institutions through the public school system.

The constitutionality of the proposal, Mullen said, has already been upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court in the case of a similar New York State law.

Under another bill, the state's intermediate educational units would be required to furnish "auxiliary services" to the private schools, to include special speech and hearing services, remedial and therapeutic services, and other secular programs now available in the public system.

Mullen estimated the cost to the state of the increased auxiliary services at $14.2 million.

Nixon Receives Warm Welcome From 300,000 Poles In Warsaw

WARSAW (AP) — President Nixon returned to this Communist capital Wednesday, retracing his steps of 13 years ago, and received a warm welcome from an estimated 300,000 clapping, chanting Poles.

The crowd appeared to be larger but not as emotional as the throng of a quarter-million that mobbed Nixon here in 1959 when he was vice president, said correspondents who made both trips.

At one point Wednesday, however, the crowd spilled through police lines onto the streets of downtown Warsaw, halting the presidential limousine.

After the motorcade Nixon talked for nearly 90 minutes with Polish Communist leader Edward Gierek and then was honored at a state dinner.

In his toast, Nixon referred to the proposed European security conference and suggested reductions in the armed forces of the Warsaw and North Atlantic blocs.

"In the months ahead, we can look forward to new progress in the building of a broad structure of friendship and cooperation throughout Europe," Nixon said.

But he added he wants the European conference carefully prepared so that it will have "real promise of achievement."

"We should like to see early talks on the reduction of the ground forces facing each other in Europe," he said.

"One objective is a reciprocal reduction of forces that will leave both sides more secure, or at least not less secure."

Switching to Polish, Nixon ended his toast with "Niech zycze przyjazn Polsko-Amerykanska"—Long live Polish-American friendship.

Polish Premier Piotr Jaroszewicz said Poland sees "great possibilities of considerable broadening of Polish-American bilateral relations."

"In the results of the Soviet-American talks we see the practical confirmation of the principles of peaceful coexistence and a sign of transition from the era of confrontation to the era of negotiation," he added.

Nixon flew here from Tehran, Iran, where a series of terrorist bombings caused tight security to be imposed on his departure.

Poland, the Communist world's third largest country, is the fourth and final stop in a journey that has carried Nixon to summit talks in Moscow and break-through agreements with Soviet leaders.

CAB Kills Panel To Protect Consumers' Airline Interests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board, without any public announcement, has killed a panel it set up less than two years ago to help protect consumers' interests in airline travel.

Since Consumer Advisory Committee was announced at a news conference in October 1970, it has met only five times. When the chairman of the consumer panel complained, CAB chairman Secor D. Browne replied with a letter last week saying, "The time has now come to dissolve the committee."

The consumer panel chairman, Reuben B. Robertson III, who is an adviser to Ralph Nader, had complained to Browne that the committee hadn't met for several months and that no CAB member had ever attended the meetings.

He said also the airline industry, through the Air Transport Association, had been bringing pressure on the CAB to end the consumer group.

Browne denied that the airlines had anything to do with his decision to dissolve the committee. He said several outside consumer groups give the CAB advice and the CAB has bolstered its own consumer-affairs office.

Browne wrote: "There are a number of consumer organizations in addition to the Aviation Consumer Action Project (ACAP)—the Nader-organized aviation group—now active in proceedings before the board.

"Their filings are useful to the board and its staff, and focus on consumer positions on particular issues.

"This has an advantage over the Committee itself, which acted informally and often as a debating forum."

Robertson had written Browne that he was aware of tremendous pressures exerted on the CAB chairman by the airlines industry and particularly by ATA President Stuart G. Tipton to bring about the premature end of the CAC.

Robertson said ATA had spent large amounts of time and money to defuse the committee's efforts and belittle consumer issues before it.

Robertson had asked that the committee be reconvened in the next two weeks and regularly thereafter.

He said the failure of the committee to meet regularly suggests that Browne's first interest in consumer views has ended.

In reply, Browne said that although the ATA had initially questioned the desirability of such a committee, it had never applied pressures against it nor was there any evidence of time and money spent to defuse it.

County Supermarkets To Be Closed Sunday

Warren's three major supermarkets revealed Wednesday they will be closed next Sunday, after a one-week test of Pennsylvania's "Blue Laws," which prohibit Sunday operation by a franchise with ten or more employees.

Spokesmen for Super Saver and Loblaw's in the Market Street Plaza and A&P, 2 Liberty st., all announced they will be closed Sunday, June 4.

The stores remained open for business last Sunday, May 28. The manager of each store later received summons from Sheriff Donnell E. Allen Jr.

Allen explained Tuesday each manager must appear before District Magistrate Martha Lawson where he may pay a $100 fine or request a hearing. In the case of the hearing, the sheriff said, the possible outcome may be appealed.

District Attorney William F. Morgan had instructed Sheriff Allen to serve new summons next Sunday if the stores are open again.

Fine for a second violation is $200. If the stores had opened a third Sunday they would have had to pay a fine for each customer making a purchase. Allen said every sale would have been considered as a separate offense.

None of the store managers would predict if Sunday openings will resume. "We'll wait until we get further notice," one said.

Johnson, H.A. Backstrom, W.R. Walker, Bryon W. Knapp, Mrs. Anthony J. Lucia and Dr. McDonald. John D. Haggerty Jr., treasurer, gave the financial report and Chester L. Christensen gave the nominating report. Charles R. Trantor, campaign director, reported on last fall's successful drive.

Strong Air Support Aids Viets In-Ground-Winning Battle

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese forces wrested back some lost ground in Kontum Wednesday behind diving aircraft that pounded the enemy with bombs and rockets despite murky weather.

The senior U.S. adviser in the central highlands said the North Vietnamese were pulling back but will renew their attacks on the city.

Over North Vietnam, U.S. Navy aircraft dropped teleguided bombs around the key southern port of Vinh to block stored war supplies and destroy petroleum depots, the U.S. Command said.

With most other fronts quiet, government defenders at Kontum claimed killing 194 enemy in clashes south of the airstrip and at the city's northern edge. Associated Press correspondent Michael Putzel reported the fighting was sporadic. It was the seventh day of close combat in the provincial capital.

John Paul Vann, the senior U.S. adviser in the 2nd Military Region that includes the highlands, told a Pleiku news conference that "Phase 1" of the battle has ended and the North Vietnamese now are pulling back to resupply, regroup their forces and get ready for more attacks.

He said although the situation had improved for the South Vietnamese defenders at Kontum in the past week, the battle for the city has not been won "by a long shot."

The North Vietnamese, now holding two military compounds in the northern part of Kontum and a small area on the southeast side, are short of supplies and troop replacements and troubled by low morale, Vann said.

Vann said the enemy had lost 3,000 killed in the Kontum fighting in the past nine days, the majority by artillery and air strikes. South Vietnamese casualties were put at least 1,000 killed and wounded.

A senior U.S. adviser told Putzel, "If it weren't for our firepower, we wouldn't still be holding Kontum."

Message To YHS Grads: Check Your Bag Of Tools

Youngsville High School graduates last night were reminded that as they receive their diplomas they should check their bag of tools before they determine a direction.

Mrs. Kathrine Dunkle Heath told the 135 members of the class that they should determine the nature of their tools before they step across the threshold of their future. She is presently with the Dept. of Nursing, Continuing Education, Penn State University. She is YHS' first woman commencement speaker.

The 1951 Youngsville High School graduate said that the graduates should not worry about or envy the sack of tools of a neighbor.

"Design your life, your future in accordance with those things that are your own. Be yourself."

"As you reach each new crossroad and as you choose the road you will take, look ahead to see where that road may lead you."

"First decide where you want to go . . . and using the tools that you carry . . . start your life's building in the direction of your choice."

Mrs. Heath said the class motto was an indication of the concern and a philosophy that goes hand in hand with success. The motto is "Not for ourselves only, but for the world."

"If you choose your life's work to fit your abilities, if you gather the tools to fit your goal then work steadily toward that goal, you cannot fail."

Mrs. Heath said that sometimes a wrong turn is taken at a crossroads.

"It is necessary then to turn around, retrace your footsteps, find your error, correct it and go on again. No wrong turn is a disaster, no one mistake in judgment is fatal and no path is a hopeless one."

She suggested that the graduates remember at their first crossroads the words of Oliver Wendell Holmes: "The time is a good one if we but know what to do with it."

Dan Lawson was selected by his classmates to receive the coveted Balfour Award. He was selected on the basis of scholarship, loyalty and achievement.

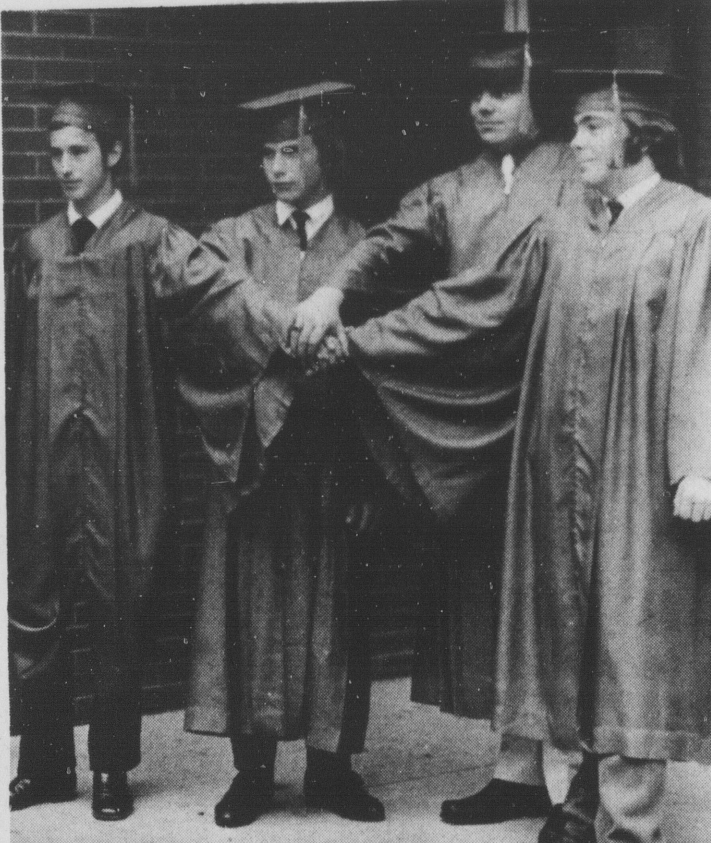

Graduates earning scholarships were announced as Michael Shine, Penn State; Patricia Glosick, Albert Moon and Bradley Chapman, Allegheny College; Diane Walter, Gannon College and Janis Jackson, New Castle School of Business.

The diplomas were presented by Felix M. Matthews, principal, and James W. Pearson and Henry S. Petersen, members of the Warren County School District board of directors.

The salutatory address was given by Nancy Ann Burleigh and the valedictory address by Diane Marie Pearson.

Introductions were made by Waide O. Ingols, assistant principal, Harold W. Landin, director of secondary education and Harold E. Miller, athletics health director.

The invocation and benediction was by the Rev. William C. Wilbert.

Regional Dog Control Steps Taken

The first steps toward a proposed regional system for the control of dogs in Warren County were taken Wednesday evening at a meeting of borough, township, and county officials held at the Warren Borough Municipal Building.

Chaired by Warren borough manager Frank Strange, the meeting was called to discuss the possibility of developing an area-wide shelter and comprehensive program for controlling dogs.

Strange explained Warren borough's plans, which are now in the design stage, for construction of a $12,000 shelter of its own, and then led a discussion of various ways in which a regional shelter could be constructed instead. He noted the availability of state grants for one-third of the cost of a shelter up to a $15,000 maximum payment.

"Warren borough cannot afford to drag its feet on this," cautioned Strange, noting that borough council is aware that the borough's present shelter is inadequate, and that council has determined to have an alternate shelter soon. If a regional shelter is to be built, he said, regional action will have to be taken soon.

Action taken at the meeting included an agreement for Strange and Youngsville borough manager George Probst to survey the administrative and legal details of an inter-municipality agreement, for other members in attendance headed by deputy sheriff Doug Irvine to check into possible county sites for such a shelter, and for all parties concerned to funnel their information through Strange, with another meeting hoped for within the next few weeks.

Millionaire Lottery Drawing Set For Today In Harrisburg

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The Pennsylvania lottery conducts its second millionaire's drawing Thursday afternoon in Harrisburg.

Preliminary rounds that will weed out most of the approximately 200 contestants will get underway at 2 p.m. in the auditorium of the state Education Building. The millionaire will be chosen about 3:30 p.m.

Lottery officials said 27 out-of-state residents—from New Jersey, Delaware, Ohio, West Virginia, Maryland and Tennessee—are among the 200.

Each contestant will receive at least $500. They became eligible by matching either the last or the last two digits of one of the five weekly winning numbers from April 12 to May 10 and then matching the semi-final number drawn on May 10. All contestants must either be present or appoint a representative in order to win.

Power Cut By Vandals In Erie Area

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — Vandals broke into a Pennsylvania Electric Co. substation just before dawn Wednesday and shut off power to the city's entire East End, affecting more than 1,600 private and industrial customers, the utility said.

No reason was given for the act, which police said could have triggered an emergency had it happened during the day or early night.

City police Capt. Joseph Ruffo said the Penelec facility was entered and the electricity shut off at about 4:45 a.m. and that it took work crews about 45 minutes to locate the problem and restore power.

"Someone just got in and began turning switches," Ruffo said.

Life has had its unusual moments for Orlando Papalia of Warren, but the one-time pilot still has a hard time believing a scenario that developed last week.

It seems that Papalia was riding his motorcycle in the Warren Airport area at the same time that some model airplane enthusiasts were flying their radio-controlled machines. Suddenly, one of the planes took off after Orly; he twisted and dodged, but the plane twisted right along with him like a homing missile, finally catching the astonished rider with a propeller smack dab in the middle of the back.

"I suppose the magneto on my bike interfered with the radio transmitter controlling the plane," said the puzzled Papalia.

At any rate, the ride was just plane memorable.

Two-Car Crash Injures Three In Route 6 Mishap

A 59-year-old Edinboro woman was listed in satisfactory condition at Warren General Hospital after suffering injuries in a two-car crash on Route 6, just west of the Warren Borough line, Wednesday morning.

According to Officer Larry Kopko of the Conewango Township Police Department, John L. Jerman, 17, of 112 Parker st. was traveling east on Route 6 around 11 a.m. when he hit a large puddle of water near the point where the four-lane highway ends and becomes two-lane highway into Warren Borough.

Jerman allegedly lost control of his car, skidded on the gravel surface and slid across the wet pavement into the west-bound lane.

New Assistance Program For Senior Citizens

ERIE—The Albion, Edinboro and McKean branches of the Erie Chapter, American Red Cross, in cooperation with Pennsylvania State Police, will launch a new service program aimed primarily at giving needed assistance to senior citizens and others living in rural areas.

Any elderly couples or individuals who live alone in some of the less populated areas of Erie County have special problems. Many live in locations where there are few if any nearby neighbors who can look after their needs and health. Winter can sometimes mean isolation to people who reside on side roads which are often snow covered.

To cope with this problem, the Red Cross branches, working with state police, are hoping to pool resources to provide services on a daily basis for the rural elderly or isolated.

When the program goes into effect, Red Cross volunteers and workers will be given phone numbers and addresses of elderly or isolated people to call. Telephone calls will be made at a time convenient to

West Mifflin Residents Aided By Antinoise Pollution Bill

PITTSBURGH (AP) — An antinoise ordinance aimed at industries has helped to mute a clanging lullaby that was becoming all too familiar to residents of sprawling suburban West Mifflin.

The law is believed to be the only one of its scope enacted by a suburban municipality.

It prohibits unnecessary noises and limits the sound level originating from any nonmobile sources. Tractor-trailers, jet planes, and barking dogs, however, are not affected by the law.

Many communities have laws limiting sound in areas such as hospital zones, but Solicitor Richard Zeleznick says none compares with the West Mifflin ordinance, which covers the entire residential-industrial borough.

"It is the only ordinance of its kind governing a municipality east of the Mississippi, except for Chicago and New York City," he said.

The idea for the ordinance originated in 1969, when Peter Momich, a research engineer with Crucible Steel, began complaining about noise from U.S. Steel's Iron Works, near his home.

The new law was passed October 5, 1971.

"We were immediately pleased with results of the ordinance," Zeleznick says.

Westinghouse Electric Corp., for one, has adjusted the sound of a compressor with its own equipment to meet the borough's standards, he said.

But the Tube City Iron and Metal Co. is presenting the first legal challenge of the new law.

Zeleznick says noise created by operations at the plant, which cuts steel beams and drops the waste metal into cavernous railroad gondolas, is 22 decibels above the legal limit.

He claims the company has done nothing to comply with the new standards.

"Now the case will be handled legally and if Tube City is found guilty, the ordinance provides a fine of not more than $300 a day," he said.

The new law, however, hasn't done much to help Momich, who inspired it in the first place.

Experts took readings for two hours near his home and registered the plant noise within the acceptable range.

"I can't believe in two hours they can tell me that the rest of my life will be all right because the reading is just one or two decibels below the limit," he said.

Claiming that he can't sleep in his house unless all windows and doors are closed to the noise, Momich vowed: "Eventually I'll have to start again—even if it's on my own."

Zeleznick indicated that the borough was open to suggestion.

"The levels we have established are subject to change in the future," he says.

No 18-Year-Old Drinking In 46 Bills Voted By Senate

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—The Senate approved a stack of bills Wednesday giving the 18-year-old virtually full legal rights-with the exception of drinking, which it voted down.

The proposal to lower the drinking age from 21 to 18 was sent back to the Senate Law and Order Committee after a voice vote.

The voice vote came on a motion to send the bill back to committee, whose chairman felt the bill had no chance of passing the Senate at this time.

Four hours earlier, the Senate passed 46 other bills pertaining to the 18-year-old. Thirty-two were sent to Gov. Milton Shapp for his signature while the others were sent to the House for concurrence in Senate changes.

While the Senate felt the 18-year-old could marry without parental consent and serve on juries he shouldn't be allowed to drink.

Most of the bills granting legal rights to the 1,005,000 people between 18 and 21 passed unanimously.

The most negative votes any bill received was nine. A bill reducing the age to 18 for state policemen passed 39-8. It was opposed by State Police Commissioner Rocco Urella.

The bills, covering a wide range of activities, were divided into various categories, including public offices and licenses, taxation, general rights and privileges.

Eighteen-year-olds, upon Gov. Shapp's signature, will be permitted to enter into legal contracts.

At the same time, they will be eligible for taxation, including

Duties And Offices Open To 18-Year-Olds

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A package of 46 bills aimed at lowering the age of adulthood from 21 to 18 passed the Senate Tuesday. Here are the right, duties and offices that would be opened to the younger citizens if the package becomes law:

Public Offices and Licenses
Real estate brokers, corporate directors, state policemen, incorporators of electric cooperatives, pharmacists, certified public accountants, auctioneers, pawnbrokers, funeral directors, women commissioners of sealed instruments, jurors, firemen, weighmasters, poultry technicians, driver trainers, insurance brokers, policemen, notaries public, assessors, deputy sheriffs, steam engine engineers, elected officials in all counties except Philadelphia, Delaware River boat pilots, school directors.

Taxation
Counties, cities, boroughs, townships and school districts.

General Rights
Making wills, settlement of real estate titles, equal work opportunities for women, entering legal contracts, marrying without parental consent acting as personal representatives in decedents estates.

Miscellaneous
Lowers age requirements in child labor laws; adjusts penal laws covering seduction, pawnbrokers, tattooing, separation and nonsupport; changes law governing role of parents and guardians in life insurance policies; and alters regulations involving employment and theatrical agencies and nurses registries.

Government Stifling Small Businessmen

There was a time when the small businessman was the envy of every day worker in his community. And why not? In addition to being his own boss, he had others to do chores while he sat in his office and counted up the profits. That's the way it was in the good old days.

But what day worker would want to change places with the small businessman of today? Not a single one, if they fully understood the governmental harassment the poor fellow has to put up with, and understood that things keep getting worse instead of better in this respect on a daily basis.

Instead of sitting in his office and counting up profits, today's businessman is sitting in his office filling out the required forms for various bureaucratic agencies in triplicate or calling his lawyer to learn what legal changes have been made since he filled the same forms out three months ago.

Then, just recently, he was hit with an increase in the minimum wage. This gives him the unpalatable choice of cutting into his profits to retain marginal workers, or letting the workers go to take their place in the line at the unemployment office.

Up to this point things couldn't have been too bad or he would have closed up shop to join the ranks of the unemployed himself. But now along comes the recently passed Occupational Safety and Health Act with so many silly regulations it's more likely he will become a candidate for a mental hospital, while pursuing the pages of the 249-page book of regulations, before he can turn the latch on the door.

If just one of these silly regulations was to be singled out it would be the one requiring wooden ladders to have only a certain number of knots per foot. Those of us who have had experiences with ladders can vouch for the fact that a single knot in a 12-foot length can lead to a catastrophic downfall.

But the worst feature of this bill is the fact that the inspector has the authority of being judge, jury, and prosecutor so far as violations are concerned, and can levy fines up to $1,000 on the spot.

It's become a pretty apparent fact that too much government intervention is slowly strangling the small businessman right out of existence. He has enough problems fighting off the competition of the giants in his line of business without being saddled with all forms of governmental regulations, plus all types of tax collections.

This is something the public should take notice of. For it's a simple fact that "small business" is the community's largest and most stable industry.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round
By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON—Rep. Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., the esteemed House Foreign Relations chairman and a power in the backrooms of Washington, has two Pennsylvania state employees on his House payroll to do political chores for him.

Even as he skillfully steers foreign aid to nations abroad, Morgan directs other U.S. Treasury checks to two political errand boys at home, John "Jake" Morgan and Thomas H. Boyd. Both men also draw full-time salaries from the state of Pennsylvania.

In other words, the taxpayers are helping to pay Morgan's campaign costs while his opponents must do without federal aid.

The 50-year-old "Jake" Morgan, no relation to the Congressman, draws $6,717 from the U.S. Treasury and another $9,454 from Pennsylvania.

He is listed as a "clerk" for the House of Representatives and construction inspector for the Pennsylvania General State Authority. We reached him at a construction site and questioned him about his "clerical" duties.

"I'm tired of all you g---d---newspapers bothering people!" he roared. "Why don't you get a real job instead of sitting around on your ---!" Then he slammed down the telephone.

Morgan's other political aide, 66-year-old Thomas Boyd, collects $9,500 a year from Pennsylvania as a field auditor and only $2,860 from the House of Representatives.

"Sometimes," he acknowledged, "we have his office all filled up with political clientele and patients and people wanting help when he gets in on the weekend."

Morgan also talked amiably to my associate, Les Whitten, about his two political henchmen.

"They're part of the political organization," Morgan explained. "Certainly they take part in political activities, but they have their field work—Veterans Administration, Social Security, black lung, and so on. I couldn't see how there would be any conflicts of interest."

PRISONER OF SAIGON
From time to time, we have reported on the fate of Truong Dinh Dzu, who was sentenced to five years of hard labor in South Vietnam after giving President Thieu a scare in the 1967 elections.

Dzu called for establishing a coalition government and negotiating an end to the war. He came in a strong second in the presidential election.

Alarmed, President Thieu sent Dzu to jail in 1968 on trumped-up charges. This would be equivalent to imprisoning Hubert Humphrey after he lost to Richard Nixon in 1968.

Last year, we reported that Dzu had been refused medical treatment in prison for a heart ailment. The U.S. mission made inquiries and was permitted to visit him.

As a result, the Saigon government sent Dzu to a hospital for a complete medical examination and notified the U.S. mission that Dzu would be released a year early.

This report was passed on to the White House which informed inquirers "that Mr. Dzu recently received a one-year reduction in sentence and is to be released on May 1, 1972."

May 1 has now come and gone. But Truong Dinh Dzu is still in prison.

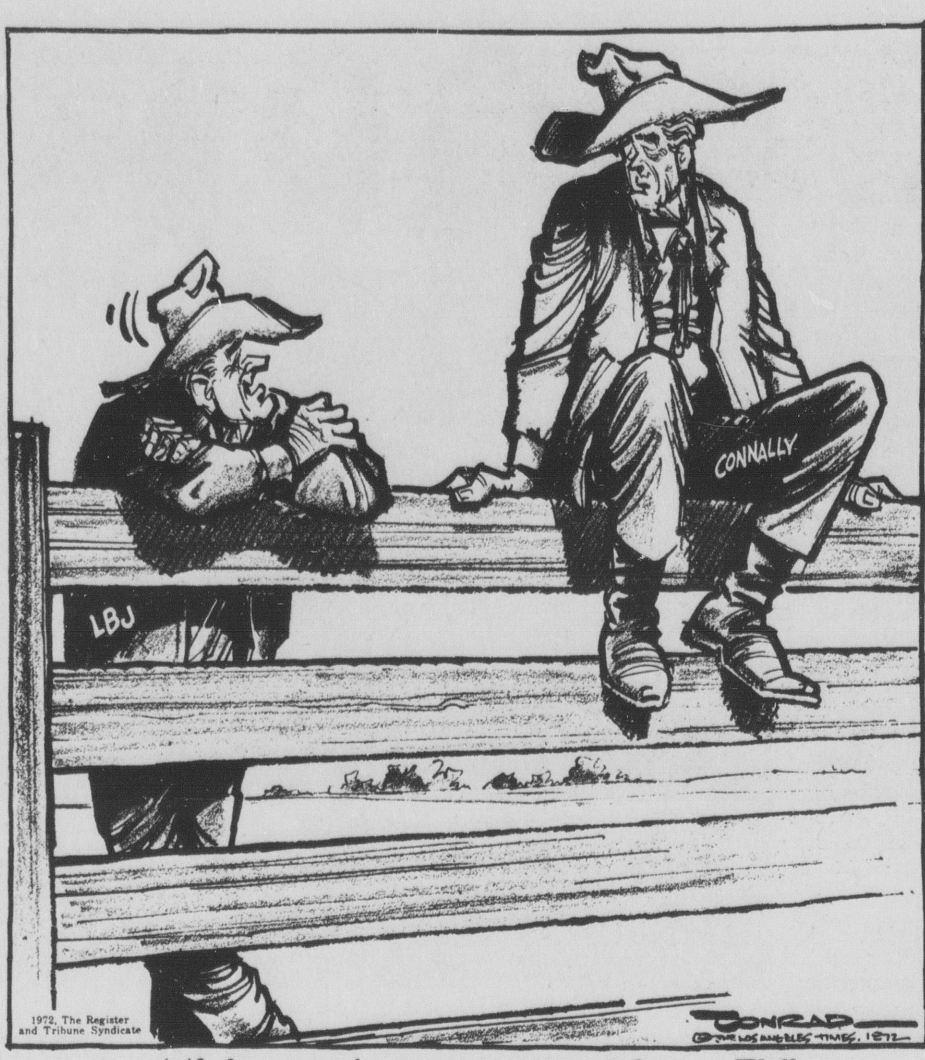

WASHINGTON WHIRL
WHO'S KIDDING—Adm. Isaac Kidd, the gung-ho new Navy Material commander, has distributed among his subordinates 2,500 picture cubes with his picture on three sides. For awhile, he also plastered the walls with enormous red posters featuring his heroic countenance and the legend: "What have you done for the fleet today?" For sailors at sea beyond sight of his posters, the Admiral dispatched cassette tapes bearing patriotic messages in the master's own voice. All this self-promotion, of course, was financed by the taxpayers.

KLEINDIENST'S LAW FIRM—Four years ago, the Phoenix law firm of Shimmel, Hill, Kleindienst and Bishop had no Washington office. But that was before Richard Kleindienst left the firm to become Deputy Attorney General. Suddenly, the firm was in great demand in Washington. It now has a full-time staff of five attorneys to handle its flourishing practice in the capital.

GAS INCREASES—We have written how Federal Power Commission Chairman John Nassikas, the natural gas lobby's best friend in Washington, has pushed through gas rate increases on grounds that this will encourage exploration for more gas. Yet, the Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management, in a draft environmental statement, seems to side with the housewives of America against the pronouncements of Nassikas and his industry cronies. "There yet is no positive indication," says the Interior Department office, "that such price increases have resulted in additional exploration and production."

SECRET PUBLICITY—Congress passed a law in 1913 which states: "No money appropriated by an Act shall be used for the compensations of any publicity expert unless specifically appropriated for that purpose." Yet even some of the government press agents, who are trying to sell the public on law and order, apparently, are violating this law. The FBI, for example, has a staff of special agents who answer press questions. They have speech writers and copywriters and scriptwriters. They help prepare the FBI television series, and they conduct public tours. Yet the FBI solemnly denies that it employs any publicity men.

Letters to "The Readers Speak" must be hand-signed and carry the name, address and telephone number of the writer. While names will be withheld from published letters upon reasonable request, this newspaper must have signatures as proof of authenticity.

On The Right Abolish 'Abolish'

By William F. Buckley, Jr.

There has been a lot of fussing about how to reword the critical phrase in the Constitution which began by denying to Congress the right to establish a state religion, and ended by telling school administrators in Anchorage, Alaska, that they may not permit common prayer in the schoolroom.

During the last season, Congress came close to passing a constitutional amendment, over which scholars and priests worried, trying to come up with wording which would satisfy the most apprehensive. There is of course very good reason to worry about exactly what to say in a constitutional amendment because the Supreme Court has taken to stretching words to mean roughly what the court wants them to mean.

It is quite widely conceded that there is a considerable problem, involving the private schools. It is true that the collapse of Catholic education is traceable to other factors than mere impoverishment. But it is also true that economic factors weigh heavily, and weigh crucially in the case of many schools. It is also true that Jewish and Protestant schools are experiencing a considerable revival, in part because private day schools are increasingly popular havens against educational and sociological bureaucracies; in part because the public feels an urge to rediscover stable values. But most significantly, there is a revival in sight of the democratic dogma, loosely defined for these purposes as the right of the people to decide for themselves what to do. And the right to decide to attend the school of one's choice would appear to be pretty basic.

My own humble suggestion is that the easiest approach of them all is quite simply to rescind that famous phrase in the First Amendment. It tells us that Congress shall make no law "respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." The phrase came at the tail end of a century in which established religions were the rule rather than the exception; two centuries after bitter religious wars had drenched the continent of Europe and before that England. The preoccupation of the Founding Fathers to avoid that kind of thing in America was altogether reasonable, and had the sanction of a brooding historical omnipresence, the theocratic state.

But in point of fact things have changed.

Pennsylvania Story A Contradiction?

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG — The recently completed Governor's Review of Management suggested the elimination of some 7,500 state positions.

The 1972-73 budget which the Governor recently submitted to the Legislature calls for the creation of more than 3,000 new positions.

Isn't this a bit contradictory? Depends on how you look at it!

In his campaign Governor Shapp promised that he would run the state in a business-like manner. In an effort to do this he asked for the Review of Management to be undertaken, and since its completion he has given every indication that he plans to implement as much of that report as is feasible.

Why then the creation of more than 3,000 jobs in the face of a suggestion to cut more than 7,500?

The answer is that the new positions will all be used to staff new programs. And the Management Review Report completely ignored the entire area of new state programs. They suggested cutting and consolidating positions in already existing programs. This the Governor has started to do and will continue to do.

Let's take a look at those new positions and see just where they are going and what the taxpayer will get from their creation.

The majority of the jobs are in the Department of Public Welfare, more than 2,200 of them. The state is staffing a new state school for the retarded, mostly children, in the Philadelphia area. This will take 250 positions. About 100 new positions will be needed to serve a new rehabilitation annex to the Phillipsburg State Hospital. This, by the way, is one of ten state hospitals which the Management Review team suggested eliminating. The Governor agrees with this proposal, but the Legislature has clung to all ten of them.

Another 200 positions are required at Ebensburg, Polk and Selingsgrove hospitals which are currently understaffed and in danger of losing federal medical assistance funds for this reason.

And still another 200 will teach retarded children at ten other state schools and hospitals.

The undermanned County Boards of Assistance will receive 850 new employees, and 516 new positions will eliminate "institutional peonage". (This is the practice of having patients in the state hospitals working in the laundry and kitchen facilities. Instead of this, vocational rehabilitation specialists are being brought in to give these people some useful training.)

Areas outside of welfare where the Governor has requested new positions include: State Police, 250, the majority of which will be uniformed troopers; Education, 203, mostly staff and faculty at the state colleges and Indiana University; Environmental Resources, 56; and Justice, 238, mostly in state-owned correctional institutions.

At the same time many departments and agencies have received cuts in their employe quotas in line with the Management Review suggestions. The Revenue Department will be cut by 150, Labor and Industry will be down 100 and many other agencies will receive smaller cuts.

Add to all of this the fact that J. M. Wallace, the director of the Management Review, has publicly said that the team expects that only about ten percent of their suggestions could possibly be completed in the first year.

Governor Shapp and his Administration at least seem determined to make a sincere effort to implement the Task Force's suggestions — so far anyway.

McGovernomics

By Tom Wicker

NEW YORK—Last week, Elizabeth Drew of the Public Television Network opened an interview with Sen. George McGovern by asking him if it were not true that his program "seems to add up to quite a substantial and important change in the way this country works, economically and socially."

"Yes," said McGovern, "the people of this country know we have to have fundamental change. We've got to turn away from war...and then as I see it, we have to have a fundamental redirection of the way we're using our resources here at home."

But McGovern contends that he has proposed responsible plans for raising "every dollar" that he has suggested spending. He would not, he told Mrs. Drew, "advocate a massive program of deficit finance" and he "wouldn't have the nerve to go to this country for additional taxes until we closed some of the loopholes that now permit the rich and the powerful to get by without paying their share."

Thus, there are two major ingredients in "McGovernomics"—tax reform and reduced defense spending. By these means, he proposes to raise $60.5 billion dollars not now available to the federal government for social purposes. Here is the breakdown:

Tax Reforms—a new minimum income tax on the wealthiest persons, $6 billion; a revision of corporate taxation to about the levels of 1959-60, $17 billion; and a stiff new tax on gifts and estates, $5 billion. This is a total of $28 billion.

Spending Reductions—$32.5 billion, all to be derived from a defense budget cut to a total of $54.8 billion, primarily by ending the war in Vietnam, reducing American forces in Europe from five to two divisions, and cutting the total defense establishment from about 2.5 million to about 1.7 million men.

Even if the desirability of these moves were conceded, of course, McGovern in the White House would have no power to effect them on his own. And almost nothing on the list looks as if it would appeal to the likes of Wilbur Mills, Russell Long, George McMahon, John Stennis and other powerful members of Congress who would be crucial to their enactment.

Still, a would-be president has to tell the nation what he would try to do; moreover, presidential powers of persuasion and politics ought never to be underestimated, and the mere fact of McGovern's election, if that should happen, would make the prospects for these proposals seem much brighter.

But what would McGovern do with all that new revenue if he could get it. The conservative National Review has tallied everything it could conceivably charge to him, figured the whole package as if it would be spent in one fiscal year, and produced the wild figure of $159 billion in proposed expenditures for that mythical year.

McGovern's spokesmen say their actual first-year budget would propose, instead, $55.7 billion in new programs—a total well within the $60.5 billion in new programs—a total well within the $60.5 billion to be raised through tax reform and defense reductions. But McGovern cannot, therefore, really cover every dollar of proposed spending, because he also plans at the outset of his administration—if there is one—to ask for a $10 billion emergency program in housing, public transit, environmental protection and public employment. That means a deficit of $5.2 billion, proposed new programs over proposed new revenues.

Here is the breakdown of the $55.7 billion in new non-emergency spending that would be included in McGovern's first budget:

To be returned to the states for property tax relief and support of public education, $15 billion; revenue sharing with the states, $5 billion; fiscal relief for the cities, $4 billion; rural economic development, $4 billion; Social Security benefit increases, $10 billion; pollution control, $3 billion; public transit, $3 billion; school and hospital construction, $3 billion; food stamps, $2 billion; control of crime and drug addiction, $1.5 billion; federal scholarships, $1 billion; a Vietnamese War Bill of Rights, $1.2 billion.

Those are the details, then, of the "fundamental redirection" of the country that George McGovern is proposing—save for his striking income redistribution plan, which would replace the existing welfare program, provide income supplements to many working persons, but also cause many Americans to pay more in taxes. That plan is complex enough to demand separate discussion.

No More Bombs

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — It was hard to believe, but in October, 1972, the United States ran out of bombs.

Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird broke the bad news to President Nixon. "I'm sorry, Mr. President, but we have no bombs left to drop on Vietnam. We're completely out."

"But that's impossible," the President said. "I was assured we had enough bombs stockpiled for five years."

"Under ordinary conditions we would have, but we've been dropping them at such an accelerated rate that we ran out last Friday. There isn't one bomb left in the United States or at any of its overseas bases."

"Can't we borrow some bombs from our allies?"

"We've already borrowed every bomb we could from Britain, France, Belgium, West Germany, Spain and Greece. We owe them 2.42 billion bombs, and they say they aren't going to lend us any more until we pay the interest on the ones we have already. At 6 per cent that comes to an awful lot of bombs."

"But, Melvin, we've got to have bombs or our strategy of bringing Hanoi to her knees will fail. Surely a great industrial giant like the United States can rise to the challenge."

"We've tried, sir, but production just can't keep up with demand. Every time a bomb comes off the assembly line, it's immediately attached to a bomb rack and dropped on Vietnam. To make matters worse, the Air Force, Navy and Marines are fighting over every bomb that is made. They had a dogfight over the Lockheed plant in San Diego the other morning and the Navy shot down an Air Force B-52 because it claimed the Air Force had stolen their bomb."

"This is serious, Melvin. If we slow down the tempo of the bombing, the North Vietnamese will interpret it as a sign of weakness. Have you checked any of the underdeveloped countries? Surely they must have some we can buy."

Somebody Saying Something

The ire of the average citizen at having to finance mounting welfare costs has changed his attitude toward his government and his home town in many cases. One as-yet-unnamed citizen evidently decided that Kane's traditional cause celebre of a hay fever relief haven was no longer as noteworthy as its welfare relief rolls, and altered this sign at the town's outskirts to express his feelings. (Photo courtesy Russ Johnson).

New Gas Well Near Titusville

TITUSVILLE—A gas well that may prove to be of considerable importance has been struck on the John M. Dunn property less than two miles southeast of Pleasantville.

It is in both the Queen sand at 1,402 feet and the Speechley at 1,615. Troy Enterprises, who are operating on the lease under an agreement with Dunn, the Titusville merchant, are enthusiastic about the prospects but have not had sufficient equipment on hand to run a test. Troy expects to do this within a week or so.

Both sands looked nice and took the hydrofracturing well, a spokesman said.

If it turns out to be a big gasser it will be the first such well in this region in many years. Natural gas, in short supply all over the country, is being hunted for by all operators, large and small.

Troy Enterprises, an Indiana company, has its eastern division in Carnegie, Pa., in charge of Dr. Dana Kelley, formerly with the state's Topographic and Geologic Survey.

The Speechley was discovered to be a gas bearing sand in 1885 when men were drilling for oil south of Oil City in Cranberry Township. It has never been probed to any extent in the Titusville region.

False Alarm

Warren Borough Police reported Wednesday the burglar alarm that sounded early Wednesday morning at Service Hardware, 414 Pennsylvania ave. west was not the result of a burglary. "It was just a false alarm," a spokesman said.

Your Money's Worth

How To Cut Automobile Operation Expenses

By Sylvia Porter

If you own and operate a standard four-door sedan and are typical, your total cost over a period of 10 years and 100,000 miles will be $13,552.95 or 13.6 cents a mile.

This sum, estimates the U.S. Dept. of Transportation, breaks down into $2,787 for gas, $2,147 for maintenance, $1,350 for insurance, $1,800 for parking and tolls, $1,319 for taxes. It does not include the cost of the average 11 new tires the owner of a car driven 100,000 miles buys today.

If you own and drive a two-door compact and are typical, your total cost over the same 10 years will come to $10,807.60 or 10.8 cents per mile.

If you're a typical owner of a sub-compact, your cost will be $9,444.03 or 9.4 cents per mile.

But you can, with the help of the following six tips and rules, slash this high cost of automobile ownership.

(1) Give your car a gentle breaking-in period. While today's cars don't need as much "breaking-in" care as in the past, you can protect your engine significantly by holding down speed to below 60 mph, avoiding fast starts and frequently varying the speed at which you drive during the first few thousand miles.

(2) Study the owner's manual. Particularly study the list of recommended maintenance measures and avoid "over-maintenance." For instance, certain points which required periodic lubrication on older cars may now be permanently lubricated and need no attention. Just knowing such facts as these can save you money.

Another tip: learn the warranty terms well.

(3) Have tuneups done at the recommended appropriate intervals. Procedures generally consist of: cleaning, adjusting or replacing spark plugs as needed; checking and/or changing ignition breaker points; cleaning and/or replacing oil and air filters; adjusting the gap between the points; adjusting engine timing; checking and adjusting valves and automatic choke; cleaning the "PCV" (positive crankcase ventilation) valve.

Also at the time of tuneup, you may want to have your breaks and parking brake checked and/or adjusted or fixed, a lubrication and oil change, your clutch checked and adjusted, certain summerizing or winterizing measures, tires rotated, etc.

(4) Save money by doing the tuneups yourself if you are so inclined. Many of the modern compact cars are designed with this specifically in mind and you can buy for $10 to $20 detailed instructions and tuneup parts kits for do-it-yourselfers. Inexpensive tool kits for routine maintenance are available too.

Incidentally, regular tuneups can reduce auto pollutants up to 55 per cent. A spark plug which fails to spark just 5 per cent of the time can increase emissions by 300 per cent.

(5) SHOP intelligently for and CHOOSE with utmost care a mechanic and/or service repair station you feel confident will give you honest, skilled and reliable service. This is probably your biggest cost saver of all-- and once you have found this person or this shop, stick with him or it.

(6) Take the following steps to increase your gas mileage by as much as 30 per cent above the average -- which alone can amount to cash savings of $75 or so each year.

+Try to develop the habit of driving smoothly and steadily. Jackrabbit starts and fast-changing high speeds gulp gas.

+Keep your tires inflated to two or three pounds above the lowest recommended pressures listed in the owner's manual.

+Unless your engine requires it, don't buy premium gas. Even some of the fanciest cars today run on regular, and high test -- costing about 10 per cent more than regular -- is entirely wasted if the car runs properly on the cheaper gas.

+Buy gas at high volume, cut-rate stations which typically sell gas for 5 cents less per gallon than name brands. Generally, gasolines of various brand names are nearly identical. Self-service stations, which exist in many areas, cut their prices even further (another 1 to 2 cents per gallon.)

+Obey the rules of the seasons. In winter, for instance, keep your gas tank as full as possible to reduce condensation of water vapor in the tank and the risk of a freeze-up in the fuel line. In winter too, start off slowly and increase your speed as the engine warms up to avoid wasting gas on prolonged warm-ups.

Summer School Schedule

Plans are being finalized for the Warren County School District summer school, according to John H. Sechriest, summer school principal.

Classes will begin on Monday, June 12. In Warren, all classes except personal typing, will be held at Beaty Junior High School. Personal typing is scheduled at Warren Area High School.

At Tidioute High School, a health class will be taught. Health, driver's education, and personal typing will be offered at Youngsville.

Summer band schools have been scheduled for Beaty Junior High School, Tidioute High School, Youngsville High School, and Eisenhower High School and students will be individually scheduled by their music instructors.

At Beaty, all classes will meet from 8 a.m. to 12:00. The following classes have been scheduled:

Make-up classes in mathematics, science, English and social studies will be held from June 12 to June 30 and July 10 to July 14.

Accelerated or advanced classes in P.O.D., Algebra I, Algebra II and Unified Geometry are scheduled from June 12 to June 30 and July 10 to July 28.

Health classes (1st session) will be taught from June 12 to June 30. Students enrolled in 2nd session health will report to school on Monday, July 10, the class will finish on July 28.

Driver's education classes will start on Monday, June 12 and end on Wednesday, June 21. Students enrolling in "behind the wheel" driver's education will be scheduled by their individual instructors.

Any student in Warren County may attend acceleration, make-up, health or driver's education classes at Beaty if the class is not going to be held in his home school. A bus schedule to Beaty is being developed with pickups in the Sugar Grove-Eisenhower area, Tidioute High School, Sheffield High School, and Youngsville High School. The schedule will be announced in the near future.

If any parent or student would like further information regarding summer school, he should contact his school guidance counselor or the summer school office at Beaty, phone 723-5200 or 723-5201.

Sechriest, announces that Alfred Lyford will conduct the summer band school at Eisenhower High School this summer. Fifth and sixth grade instrumental students at Russell, Sugar Grove, and Lander elementary schools as well as all instrumental students at Eisenhower will be eligible for the band school.

Eisenhower's summer band school will start on Monday, June 12. Students will be individually scheduled by Mr. Lyford.

Parents or students interested in the program should contact their elementary principal or their junior-senior high school band instructor. Lyford can be contacted during the day at the Sugar Grove elementary school. Phone 489-7851.

One of Warren County's leading artists, Dorothy Hook, has won the special and top award for painting at the Jury Art Festival in Harrisburg. The painting is now on exhibit at William Penn Museum in Harrisburg. Mrs. Hook is also exhibiting at Jamestown's Prendergast Library and on Friday will open a show at Graduate Commons, Pennsylvania State University, State College. The Hook family is presently residing in Annville, Pa. but expects to return to their home at Allegheny Springs in July.

At Thiel College's recent all-sports banquet, the college pastor began the invocation. Someone accidentally turned on full blast the dining hall music. Unperturbed, the pastor continued and in conclusion said, "That must have been the heavenly host."

One church, four daughters, two wedding ceremonies, 300 guests, 20 cases of champagne and more food than the father of the brides can estimate. Put them together and you have a wedding day in the life of the N.J. Mrzlak family of Columbus, Neb. Mrzlak walked down the aisle of St. Bonaventure Roman Catholic Church four times Monday, each time giving the hand of a daughter in marriage. The brides were among the Mrzlak's 11 children, ranging in age from 13 to 29.

State Welfare Aid Increases In County

Times-Mirror and Observer Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — Public Welfare programs of one kind or another in Warren County during the past fiscal year received an estimated $3,349,596 in state and federal funds, a report by the State Department of Public Welfare revealed today.

The $3,349,596 represents an upswing of $826,073 when compared with the preceding fiscal year during which the county received $2,523,523 for welfare programs.

Generally speaking, the money was spent like this: public assistance (relief) — $1,799,998 ($1,195,423 the previous year); mental health and mental retardation program — $1,401,414 ($1,204,322); medical services and facilities — $33,505 ($18,858); children and youth services — $98,849 ($65,250); services to the blind — $5,229 ($11,821); and services to the aging — $10,601 ($27,849).

A breakdown of these expenditures during the year in the county shows for example that of the $1,401,414 spent on mental health, $1,020,686 was underwritten by the state for care, treatment and maintenance of Warren Countians in state-owned mental hospitals and psychiatric institutes; $320,460 for the care of mentally retarded in state-owned schools, and $60,268 in grants for community services for the mentally ill and mentally retarded.

Medical services and facilities grants amounting to $33,505 went to restoration centers in the county.

Expenditures for children and youth services in the county during the year totaled $98,849 including $63,058 for the care of Warren Countians in state-operated youth development centers and forestry camps for juvenile delinquents; $31,973 as reimbursement to Warren County for child welfare services; $818 as subsidies to non-state-operated facilities for the care of county juvenile delinquents, and $3,000 in community grants for juvenile delinquency programs.

Services for the blind included $3,965 in direct services for vocational rehabilitation, $794 for the prevention of blindness and preservation of sight, and $470 for the purchase of services from Pennsylvania Association for the Blind.

The $10,601 in community grants for services for the aging included $4,819 for day care or activity centers and $5,782 for homemaker housekeeping service.

The Energy Crisis is threatening your way of life!

It's a proven fact that America is in the beginning stages of an energy crisis...at a time when it must have abundant supplies of clean energy to protect both its economy and its environment.

The growing shortage of all forms of energy is the most serious problem confronting our nation today. Without adequate supplies of energy, there is no way to solve many of our other major problems.

Let's face the facts, before the energy crisis turns into a disaster:

1. The welfare of the nation and its citizens is directly dependent upon an adequate availability of energy fuels. With only six percent of the world's population, America uses one-third of the world's energy.
2. The nation is in the beginning stage of an energy crisis due to increasing shortages of all forms of energy. Natural gas, which supplies one-third of U.S. energy needs, is already unable to meet current demands.
3. The situation is getting worse every day and unless the public recognizes the problem and urges government to cooperate with industry for an early solution, disaster could strike as early as the winter of 1973-74. Industries could shut down because of lack of energy, resulting in great unemployment. Homes and commercial establishments could be without enough energy for their daily needs.

4. The day of low cost energy is past. The prices of all forms of energy must increase sharply if the nation is to have the supplies it needs. Congress, the Administration and the public must be prepared for these higher energy costs, and greater efforts must be exerted to conserve energy by stopping wasteful practices.

These facts are evident from an abundance of studies and official energy reports. They lead to the inescapable conclusion that early development of adequate supplies of energy must have the highest priority among our national goals.

The present-day America of 200 million people would be crippled without continuous development of new energy sources.

Energy needs have doubled since 1950, and are projected to double again by 1985 and triple by the end of the century, according to a government forecast.

While the shortage is becoming dramatically clear as to natural gas, it is by no means limited to natural gas.

—Oil, which in 1971 supplied 44% of the nation's energy needs, is also in short supply. The nation is increasingly dependent on foreign oil imports, with all their related uncertainties.

—Coal in 1971 supplied 18% of our energy needs. While the nation has substantial reserves, environmental requirements limit their utilization. Substantial research and development programs are needed to develop new technology to make these vast reserves available, such as coal gasification, and programs to remove pollutants so coal can be used directly. Such projects are long-term, so coal cannot be counted on as an immediate or short-term alternative to other energy fuels.

—Hydropower provided about 4% of energy needs in 1971 and is being counted on to supply an even smaller portion of total energy needs in the future.

—Nuclear energy, which in 1971 provided less than 1% of our energy needs, is being counted on to provide a substantial portion of the nation's future energy needs, but not to a significant degree before 1985. In the meantime it is already far behind schedule and more costly than expected because of environmental delays.

You owe it to yourself and your community to become more informed about the grave national energy situation. Write for a free copy of the brochure we have prepared which presents the facts of the energy crisis together with the details of the Action Program Columbia Gas has developed to help correct this crisis. Congress and the Administration have been informed of our Action Program.

What can you do?

Raise your voice. Your government and your elected officials are sensitive and responsive to your needs, when you make them known.

Write to your Senators and Representative. Tell them you are concerned about our nation's energy crisis. Urge each of them to support the positive actions that are needed if we are to prevent this crisis from becoming a disaster.

MOE BERG, A MAN OF MANY FACETS
NEW YORK—Moe Berg had such manifold talents that he had to be as unusual and remarkable a character as the world of baseball ever produced. It's a sadder world today because Moe died suddenly on Monday at the age of 70 and those who knew him best will grieve deeply. He was such a delightful companion and just to be with him was not only a pleasure but often an educational experience.

As a ball player Moe Berg was never that important but as baseball's Man of Distinction he was matchless. He had been an honor graduate at Princeton. He received a law degree from Columbia. He studied at the Sorbonne in Paris. As a world traveler he was a linguist who could speak either 10 or 12 languages—the exact number is in dispute—and he put that skill to valuable use as an undercover agent for Col. Wild Bill Donovan's office of strategic services during the Second World War.

Moe was baseball's prize intellectual even if it didn't help him especially during his 15 years as a big league catcher. Buck Crouse made that pointedly clear one day after each had caught a game of a double header for the White Sox, each fanning ingloriously on curve balls at critical moments.

"Moe," said Buck, an unlettered hillbilly, "I don't care how many of them college degrees you got. They ain't learned you to hit that curve ball no better than me."

Glib and fascinating conversationalist though he was, Moe kept a curtain drawn over his wartime adventures with the O.S.S. He indicated that secrecy had to be protected in case procedures ever had to be followed again. But hints emerged of his posing as a German businessman in Switzerland while tracking down a German nuclear scientist.

There was another hint of his being parachuted into Yugoslavia where he could not help but look more Yugoslavian than Tito. I can even visualize Moe in native mountaineer costume. His dark visage would have fitted him into the scenery, although his size would have been above average for the Balkans because Moe was a big guy, 200 pounds and six feet plus.

It has to be presumed that Moe liked to be mysterious. Many years ago I arrived at the Polo Grounds in the middle of a ball game. As I headed for the press box, my eye was caught by a solitary figure in the virtually vacant right field stands. It was Moe Berg. I joined him. Just as the game ended, I remember that I long had wanted to get from him his home phone and address.

"Got down this number," said Moe. "It's my brother's number in Newark. He'll know how to reach me. Any time you have mail for me, send it to me in care of Joe Cronin at the American League office in Boston."

As the then manager of the Red Sox, Cronin had been his last baseball boss, Moe serving under him as bullpen coach. It was in 1939 that baseball called on Moe for the first and only time. One day he revealed what was in his heart. Said he:

"Europe is in flames, withering in a fire set by Hitler. All over that continent men and women and children are dying. Soon we, too, will be involved. And what am I doing? I'm sitting in the bullpen, telling jokes to the relief pitchers."

His first government assignment, by the way, was to broadcast to the Japanese in their own language. To the average person this has to seem the ultimate in linguistic skill.

Although Moe never formally returned to baseball after he left it for the O.S.S., he remained a fan to the end. Even though he was paying his own way Moe would show up year after year at every World Series and every All Star game. A couple of times a week, it seemed, he's also shown up at local ball parks, always in the black suit that had become something of a trademark with him.

The man who diverted Moe into baseball was Dutch Carter, the eminent lawyer. Carter once had pitched so superbly for Yale that big league teams clamored for his services. It was his advice Moe sought.

"Take the baseball career," said Dutch. "The law can wait. When I was your age, I had a chance to pitch in the National League. But my family looked down on professional sports and vehemently opposed my accepting. I've always been sorry I listened to them because it's made me a frustrated man. Don't you become frustrated. At least give it a try."

So Moe signed with the Dodgers as a shortstop as soon as he got his sheepskin, meanwhile refusing an offer to teach in the Romance Language Department at Princeton. It was a decision he never regretted.

And now this valued friend is gone. Knowing him was a privilege and being with him was a joy.

West Coast Schools Favored At NCAA Meet

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — UCLA, Southern California and Oregon finished 1-2-3 last year, and the three Pacific-8 Conference powers, are expected to push for the top spot again in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's 1972 track and field championships.

With the withdrawal of North Carolina, Central, Texas-El Paso ranked as the No. 1 non-West Coast challenger going into Thursday's opening session of the three-day meet at Hayward Field on the University of Oregon campus.

North Carolina Central withdrew from the meet after Kenyans Robert Ouko and Julius Sang were declared ineligible. The NCAA said Ouko and Sang, who competed for their country in the 1968 Olympics, had completed their eligibility under its rules governing foreign athletes.

The decathlon was scheduled to open the meet Thursday morning with qualifying and time trials in a number of events continuing until early evening. Friday's agenda includes finals in six events with the 51st annual attraction winding up Saturday afternoon.

Because it is an Olympic year, all individual running events will be in metric distances except for the 400-yard and mile relays.

The Pacific-8, whose teams have won or shared the national crown 10 of the last 11 years, is expected to get a serious challenge from Texas-El Paso, a Western Athletic Conference school loaded in the sprints.

The Miners have the defending champion, Harrington Jackson, in the 100 among the talented sprinters assembled by Coach Wayne Vandenburg.

But UCLA, which won last year's meet with 52 points, and USC, which won the conference championship two weeks ago, also have powers in the sprints.

Oregon has strength across the board and counts among its ranks two defending champions, distance star Steve Prefontaine and long jumper Bouncy Moore.

Detroit Nips Cleveland On Sacrifice Fly, 5-4

CLEVELAND (AP) — Eddie Brinkman hit a bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the 10th inning, giving the Detroit Tigers a 5-4 victory over skidding Cleveland Wednesday night after reliever Fred Scherman worked out of a bases-loaded, none-out jam in the Indians' ninth.

Bill Freehan started the winning rally with a pinch single off Steve Mingo and Paul Jata sacrificed. Tony Taylor was hit by a pitch and Mickey Stanley walked before Brinkman hit his fly ball.

The triumph enabled the Tigers to take over undisputed possession of first place in the American League East from rain-riddled Baltimore by one-half game. It was Cleveland's seventh consecutive setback and dropped the third-place Indians two games back.

The Tigers trailed 2-1 until the eighth when Norm Cash homered off Milt Wilcox, Tom Haller singled and Stanley homered for a 4-2 Detroit lead.

The Indians rallied for two in the bottom of the ninth on singles by Buddy Bell, Lou Camilli and John Lowenstein, a passed ball, walk and Eddie Leon's sacrifice fly, which was dropped by right fielder Jim Northrup. With the score tied and the bases filled, Scherman then retired Del Unser on a popped-up bunt, struck out pinch hitter Gerry Moses and got Chris Chambliss on a liner to second.

Notes & Quotes

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — First baseman Willie McCovey, big gun of the San Francisco Giants' attack, has tested his broken arm by swinging a bat and is "kind of hoping to play this weekend."

McCovey said Tuesday night after testing the left forearm broken in a game with San Diego six weeks ago:

"I decided to give it a good test to see what I could do, how hard I could really swing. I wanted the reaction I'd get. I didn't have any pain."

But the batting practice was not conclusive. McCovey won't know when he can return to the lineup until he has talked again, probably Wednesday, with Dr. E. C. Sailer, team physician.

"It's still going to take time, the big slugger said. 'I haven't seen major league pitching in a month and a half. My timing has got to be off, even if my arm is 100 per cent sound."

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Gross gate receipts at Omaha Civic Auditorium for the Joe Frazier-Ron Stander heavyweight title fight last Thursday totaled $242,975. Don Moran, treasurer of the sponsoring Cornhuskers Boxing Club has announced.

Moran said the 2½ per cent state sales tax and 1 per cent city sales tax amounted to $8,504.12, and another $21,315.53 was paid to the State Athletic Commission.

From the remaining $213,155.35, Stander received $42,631.07, or 20 per cent, and Frazier received $83,262.14, or 40 per cent. Frazier's 40 per cent was computed after $5,000 was subtracted from the $213,155.35 for the sickle cell anemia fund.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Joe Diller took up weight lifting as therapy for a back injury at the age of 49. Today, Diller, now 72, leg presses 600 pounds and does push-ups with 180-pounds in weights attached to his waist.

Diller doesn't look like a weight lifter. He doesn't look 72.

He is 5-foot-9 and weighs 160 pounds, a figure that never varies more than three pounds. His stomach is flat and hard.

"It's me against the iron in this weight room. Over the years its value physically and mentally has paid off," he said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Alton White, the first black player to be signed by the World Hockey Association, doesn't regard himself as a trail blazer in the tradition of baseball's Jackie Robinson.

"Robinson's case was much tougher than mine," White acknowledged Wednesday. "He had to undergo all kind of hardships. He couldn't eat in restaurants with the other guys, he couldn't stay in the same hotels. 'I must say in all of my years of playing hockey I have not been treated too badly.'"

ATLANTA (AP) — Coach Lowell "Cotton" Fitzsimmons, who took the Phoenix Suns to consecutive third-place finishes in two professional coaching seasons was named coach of the Atlanta Hawks Wednesday. Fitzsimmons, the shortest coach in the National Basketball Association at 5 feet 8, replaces Richie Guerin, who resigned about a month ago to become general manager of the Hawks.

Fitzsimmons went to the Suns from Kansas State, where he coached two seasons.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Atlantic Coast Football League will cease operations for the 1972 season but plans to resume in 1973, league president Cosmo Iacovazzi said Wednesday.

The minor pro football league came into existence in 1962. It had 11 teams in 1970 but only four teams—two in Connecticut and two in Virginia—last season.

CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS, Pa. (AP) — Robert Kennedy, 53, is a dedicated golfer.

The Cleveland, Ohio, resident was pursuing his favorite sport Wednesday morning at Riverside Golf Course in this western Pennsylvania resort town when he was struck in the head by a bullet apparently fired by a hunter in a nearby wooded area, police said.

Fortunately, the force of the missile was almost spent, and after treatment by a local doctor, troopers said, Kennedy returned to the course to finish his round.

Golf Digest

Helen Potter championed all comers in first flight in all three classes of the Tee-To-Green Tournament held Tuesday by the Blueberry Hill Ladies Golf League. Helen had the low gross, low net and tournament honors all to herself in the 18-hole bracket.

Other following suit were Versal Munch, in the third flight and Jeri Munksgard in the fourth class. Hazel Shield recorded the low gross and net in the second division, but bowed to Bert Irvin for the tournament kudos.

In the nine-hole tourney, Myrtle Stenberg took all three categories in the second flight, while Jane Frits was busily engaged in doing likewise in flight three. Geneva Class spoiled Jean Christie's bid for a sweep in the fourth division by copping that flight's tournament citation.

N.O. Saints Owner Linked With Convicted Gambler

WASHINGTON (AP) — The director of the New Orleans Crime Commission told a congressional committee Wednesday that New Orleans Saints football team owner John Mecom Jr. was associated in a business deal with a convicted gambler and with a developer with ties to alleged Mafia kingpin Carlos Marcello.

Aaron M. Kohn told the House Select Committee on Crime that he would ask for perjury charges against a former Louisiana state official who denied under oath that he had accepted campaign contributions for two governors from

Blyleven Subdues Royals

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Eric Soderholm socked a three-run sixth-inning homer, his third of the season and second game-winner, boosting Bert Blyleven and the Minnesota Twins to a 3-2 victory over the Kansas City Royals Wednesday night.

Soderholm, a sharp fielding rookie who was hitting just .183 before the game, connected with two out off Jim Rooker, 2-2, after Rod Carew and Harmon Killebrew opened the inning with singles.

Rooker, who pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the first and entered the sixth with a two-hitter, seemed to have worked out of trouble by getting Bobby Darwin on a fly ball and firing a third strike by Rick Renick. But Soderholm drove Rooker's 1-2 pitch 366 feet into the left field seats.

Blyleven struggled to his seventh victory against three losses, benefiting in the seventh when Lou Piniella tried to score from first on Ed Kirkpatrick's looping single to right and was cut down at home on Danny Thompson's relay to Phil Roof.

Kirkpatrick's single in the first drove in one Kansas City run. Amos Otis, who had three hits and stole two bases, singled, stole second and scored on Rooker's single in the second.

Kemper Open Next Tourney On Golf Tour

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Samuel Jackson Snead, a relic, joined the current crop of professional standouts this week in the $175,000 Kemper Open.

Snead, who celebrated his 60th birthday last weekend, is making only his eighth start of the season on the regular tour but has played well enough to collect $16,973 in winnings, putting him ahead of such players as Frank Beard, Mason Rudolph, Ray Flod and Deane Beman.

"He's probably the most amazing athlete in the world," Lee Trevino said.

Snead scored the last of his 84 tour triumphs in the 1965 Greensboro Open but challenged Jack Nicklaus for the Doral-Eastern Open title earlier this year.

the owners of a New Orleans race track and a Buffalo, N.Y. holding firm.

Kohn's testimony highlighted a day in which only three witnesses were called. Appearing with him was Kenneth Norris of the Louisiana State Police.

Also appearing before the committee was Richard Castucci of Massachusetts, who took the Fifth Amendment to questions asked of him. The committee had asked Castucci if he had attempted to bribe jockeys and if he had invested in race tracks with money he made through bookie operations.

Kohn told the committee that Mecom was one of six directors and shareholders in the Hidden Lake Corp., and one of four directors in New Orleans Properties Inc.

Also a director in both corporations is Sam Lee Presley Jr., who was convicted Sept. 9, 1971, in Biloxi, Mass., of conspiracy and of using an interstate facility to promote a gambling enterprise, Kohn said.

Kohn said another partner is Berald E. Sonnor, who "has a considerable record of forming business partnerships with individuals who are also partners of Carlos Marcello or other major members of the Marcello structure."

Kohn said also Mecom is a close friend of James and Anthony Moran, owners of La Louisiane Restaurant in the French Quarter of New Orleans.

Kohn said the Moran brothers, sons of the late professional boxer and Huey P. Long bodyguard Diamond Jim Moran, had "close social and sometimes financial association" with the Marcello family.

The Crime Commission director said also James Moran was a business partner of Johnny Robinson, all-pro safety for the Kansas City Chiefs. He said Moran and Robinson purchased the Mirror Lake Town Club in Kansas City and named it Johnny Robinson's Swim and Tennis Club.

The property was purchased from Edward P. Osadchey, alias Eddy Spitz, Kohn said. Spitz has been described by the Kansas City Crime Commission as part of the Kansas City organized-crime structure, Kohn testified.

Kohn said he would ask the district attorney in Jefferson Parish, La., to file perjury charges against former Louisiana Racing Commission Chairman J.M. Pete Menefee.

Two witnesses before the House committee testified earlier that they gave Menefee campaign funds for the late Gov. Earl Long and the former Gov. John McKeithen.

One witness—John Masoni, president of Jefferson Downs race track near New Orleans, testified Tuesday he gave Menefee $25,000 for McKeithen's campaign in 1964. He said the funds came from himself and from his associates, including the Jacobs brothers who run Emprise Corp. of Buffalo, N.Y.

Dodgers Outlast Giants; Win In 10th Inning, 5-4

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Manny Mota lashed a tie-breaking triple in the 10th inning, lifting the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 5-4 victory over the San Francisco Giants Wednesday.

Mota's hit off losing reliever Don McMahon, 0-2, scored Willie Davis, who had led off the 10th with a walk. Mota then was trapped off third, with Wes Parker at bat. Parker followed with an infield single.

Reliever Jim Brewer, 4-2, was the winner, blanking the Giants over the last two innings.

The Giants chased starter Al Downing and gained a 4-4 tie in the seventh when Ken Henderson led off with a walk, took second on Russ Gibson's sacrifice and scored on Bobby Bonds' double.

Bill Russell singled, stole second and scored on a wild pitch by Ron Bryant in the Dodgers first. The Giants tied it in the bottom of the inning on a walk to Bonds, Tito Fuentes' double and Dave Kingman's sacrifice fly.

The Dodgers' Bobby Valentine blazed his second homer of

WHA Approves Philly Franchise

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A World Hockey Association franchise has been awarded to Philadelphia, a league spokesman announced here Wednesday.

The award of the franchise, headed by James L. Cooper of Atlantic City, N.J., and Bernard Brown of Vineland, N.J., gives the fledgling league 11 teams.

In announcing the Philadelphia franchise, the spokesman said the WHA hoped to make a "major signing announcement" here Saturday. Details were not disclosed.

No nickname was yet determined for the Philadelphia team, the spokesman said. He discounted problems which might arise from a head-to-head attendance battle with the Flyers of the National Hockey League.

The club hopes to play its games in the Spectrum, the spokesman said, but at the moment has an option on 90 dates to be played at Convention Hall, which has a 9,000 seat capacity. The Spectrum seats about 16,000.

Golf Talk

Area golfers have an opportunity to beat the pros and contribute to charity at the same time when they participate in the annual National Golf Day.

The foursome of Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Kathy Whitworth and Joanne Carner set the target scores Tuesday at the Canterbury Golf Club in Cleveland. Nicklaus shot a 72 for the men's score to aim at and Miss Whitworth carded an 80.

Golfers have through June 18 to play 18 holes and try to beat the pros, with proceeds going to golf-related charities.

John Kleimer, pro, Cowanango Valley
Rocky Logan and Dr. Ted Kottraba tied for the week's low score with 18-hole totals of 73 on Saturday.
Mary Conarro led the ladies with a 78 on Monday.

Les Rettberg, pro, Jackson Valley
Over 70 golfers have already signed up for the JVCC Open, scheduled for June 11. Registration is continuing in the pro shop.
Eddie Bello, pro Blueberry Hill
The Northwest Savings Day, scheduled for this Saturday, June 3, has been postponed until a later date.

Gibson 3-Hits Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Lou Brock singled across Dal Maxvill from second in the fifth inning to back Bob Gibson's three-hit pitching and give the St. Louis Cardinals a 1-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs Wednesday.

Gibson, 2-5, won his second successive decision by shading Chicago's Ferguson Jenkins, who yielded eight scattered hits, three by Matty Alou. Jenkins, registering his ninth straight complete game, is 5-5.

After Don Kessinger's leadoff single in the fourth, Gibson held the Cubs hitless until Gene Hiser's one-out single in the eighth. Jim Hickman singled in the ninth.

The Cards scored in the fifth when Maxvill opened with a single, was sacrificed by Gibson and scored on Brock's single to center.

Alou, hitting in his 13th straight game, doubled, singled and tripled in his first three trips. His sixth-inning leadoff triple was wasted when he was nailed off third on Ted Simmons' one-out bouncer to the mound.

Lawyer Suggests 5-Year Contracts

BOSTON (AP) — A Boston lawyer who has negotiated contracts for more than 200 professional athletes proposed Wednesday that players be bound to teams that originally draft them for only five years.

Bob Woolf, who made the proposal in a letter to Pete Rozelle, commissioner of the National Football League, said it could end escalating arguments over reserve clauses.

"This proposal is aimed primarily at pro football," Woolf said, "but it should work for every sport because they all have that common problem."

With federal court suits pending against reserve clauses, Woolf said professional football and others could use his plan to solve the problem. It would work like this:

—An athlete would be bound for five years to the team which drafted him, but after that time could place his name in a veterans pool if he were unhappy.

—Teams would draft from the pool as in the college draft, with the team with the worst record getting first choice, and so on.

—If unable to come to terms with his new team in a 30-day period, the player could place his name back in the pool and be drafted again. If still unable to reach agreement, he could be drafted one more time, but would be bound to the third team for a year. He could repeat this draft procedure annually, after his fifth year.

Woolf said he discussed the proposal with management representatives of most professional football teams and with many of his clients.

"None of them like the plan in its entirety," he said, "but they all agree it's something they could probably live with."

Currently, pro football players may elect to play out their option by not signing a contract in any given year, for which they take an automatic 10 per cent cut in pay.

Pepi Changes Mind

CHICAGO (AP) — Joe Pepitone will be back in a Chicago Cub baseball uniform no later than June 30, General Manager John Holland said today.

Holland said he met with Pepitone, 31, Tuesday and the flamboyant first baseman told him he wants to end his voluntary retirement announced May 2.

Holland said he contacted Pepitone after the Cubs were "very close" to making a trade for an established first baseman to replace Pepitone.

"We had to know what Joe's plans were before we went ahead with the trade," Holland said. "We didn't want to bring in a first class first baseman and then have him (Pepitone) tell us he was going to ask for reinstatement."

"I called him during the day and couldn't reach him. When he returned my call I told him to come into my office and tell me what he wanted to do."

"He said, 'I can tell you right now. I want to come back.'"

Holland said he called the trade off late Tuesday and said he planned to contact Charles Feeney, National League president, to find out whether or not it is acceptable for a player to work out with a team before he actually becomes eligible to play.

Pepitone, Holland said, wishes to start working out with the club immediately although he must wait 60 days from the May 2 announcement before officially joining the roster.

By John Hamer
Congressional Quarterly
WASHINGTON — The first major international effort to save the world's environment will be launched next month against a background of controversy and criticism.
"This is a case of the survival of the planet," said anthropologist Margaret Mead about the United Nations Conference on the Human Environment. The conference will be held June 5-16 in Stockholm, Sweden.
Heading the 60-member U.S. delegation to Stockholm will be Russell E. Train, chairman of President Nixon's Council on Environmental Quality. Much criticism from environmentalists and members of Congress has been directed at American planning for the UN conference.

'Environmental Junkie'
Denis Hayes, founder of Environmental Action, accused the United States of treating the conference like an "environmental junkie." Mead called U.S. activities "a generally constipated set of proceedings.... The main thing is that nobody's in charge."
Many environmentalists contend that government agencies have discouraged citizen participation. Roger Hansen, executive director of the Rocky Mountain Center on Environment, charged that environmental groups were excluded from conference preparations "almost by design.... The UN conference is certainly a most effective governmental shutout."
Ross Vincent, vice president of the Ecology Center of Louisiana and one of the few citizen environmentalists on the U.S. delegation, said there has been an "incredibly tight lid on information" about the conference. "There's a lot of manipulation going on behind the scenes," Vincent said. "Upper- and middle-level bureaucrats are playing little games, jockeying for jobs with the UN and private interests."

Asked about domination of the U.S. delegation by government and industry leaders, Train said at a May 19 news conference: "Necessarily, there is a heavy government participation and membership. There's no way to avoid it." The delegation vice chairman, Christian A. Herter Jr., special assistant for environmental affairs to the secretary of state, later remarked: "A lot of people wanted a trip to Stockholm."

Administration Proposal
Nixon has proposed a voluntary $100-million UN environmental fund, with a U.S. share of 40 percent over five years. Mead argued: "That's only $8-million a year to save the planet when we're spending billions to destroy part of it in Vietnam." But Train called the fund "a demonstration of U.S. commitment" and said: "We're not going to be able to spend our way to a good global environment."

Democratic Sen. Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island, chairman of the Foreign Relations Subcommittee on Oceans and International Environment, criticized what he called the "utter apathy" of the American public toward the conference. Pell's subcommittee and a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee held hearings on the conference and some related legislation that has been introduced, but no further action is likely. Seven senators and four representatives have been named as congressional delegates.

Cold War Shadow
Beyond the disagreements over U.S. participation in the conference, there have been disagreements involving other nations. The cold war, for example, has cast its shadow over the proceedings.

The Soviet Union and other Communist bloc countries have threatened to boycott the conference if East Germany (a non-member of the UN) is not allowed to attend and vote. East Germany was denied membership May 19 in the World Health Organization, a UN agency. Acceptance automatically would have qualified the country for the Stockholm meeting.

Agenda Items
The first item on the conference agenda will be adoption of a broad and non-controversial "declaration on the human environment." Delegates then will consider an "action plan" that covers six general areas: human settlements, natural resources management, international pollutants, education and information, development and environment, and institutional arrangements.

Graduation Exercises Held Throughout County

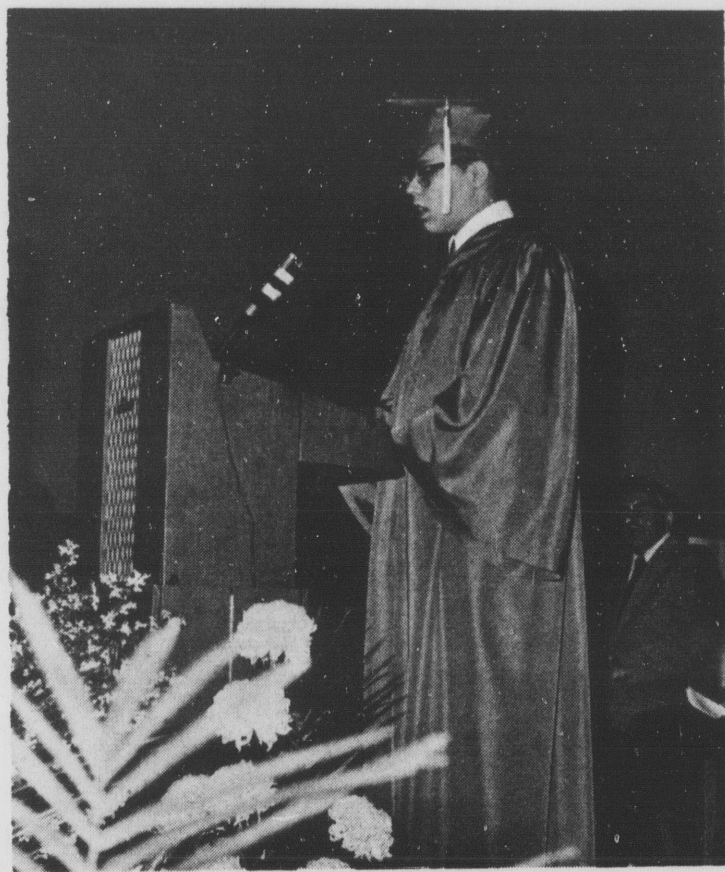

WAHS Commencement Exercises

Dr. Scott C. Mohr, left, 1958 graduate of Warren Area High School, was the guest speaker at graduation ceremonies there Wednesday evening. He condemned what he called the top-down

Growth And Responsibility Highlight Sheffield Talk

Sheffield's 1972 graduating class last night was given an invitation to growth and responsibility.

The Rev. Joseph A. Piehuta, director, Catholic Clinical-Pastoral Training Program, St. Elizabeths Hospital, Washington, D.C. reflected on growth, development, responsibility and love. He referred to the stages of growth as automatic and by invitation.

Automatic growth, the 1953 SHS graduate said, is by the laws of nature, society and environment, including growth in womb, weaning stage, during school years and in adolescence.

The womb represents security, warmth, food and shelter, he said. The call is received in the weaning stage to "come out" and experience the next stage—"which probably (we would) refuse if we had the chance," he said.

Going to school is forced growth—forced to get along with age-mates, forced to learn masculine and feminine roles, social roles and to acquire skills.

Adolescence is automatic biological, physiological and psychological development without choice, Fr. Piehuta said.

"Gradually the forced or automatic growth phenomena changes," he said, "and takes a different kind of orientation. In adult life a person receives an invitation to grow into the next step or stage of development."

"Growth into full potential and maturity and adult personhood is not automatic. No one forces us into that stage," Fr. Piehuta said.

He said there is a resistance to growth and a desire to stay where we are—or regress.

"One wonders if it wasn't for our physical, psychological and biological changes that we cannot alter, would some of us want to retreat all the way back to the womb and not want to experience the world or people at all!"

"Perhaps what we have to develop is this openness and courage to life, to love and to people. Perhaps this is what life is all about...the opportunity, the invitation, the call to be aman for others."

Sixty-two seniors received their diplomas from Bruce A. Smith, a retiring teacher, and Myron E. Jewell, a member of the Warren County School District board of directors.

Miss Mary Richwalsky, a retiring teacher, introduced the speaker.

A number of awards were noted.

Irene English and Pamela Lyle received the Senior Woman's Club award for the highest scholastic average in English for four years.

Sally Steffan received the Rotary Club award for the highest scholastic average in Social Science for four years.

Jeffrey Mull received the Progressive Woman's Club award for the highest scholastic average in mathematics for four years.

Donna Quist received the Lions' Club award for the highest scholastic average in all commercial subjects.

As valedictorian, Sally Steffan received the Reader's Digest Award.

The award for the highest Home Economics scholastic average went to Linda Camp and was awarded by the Junior Woman's Club. Linda also received the Warren County Federation of Woman's Club $125 scholarship.

Pamela and Linda Camp were awarded $500 by the Warren Rotary Club.

Jeff Mull's salutatory address was on the topic, "The Evils of Apathy." The valedictory address by Sally Steffan was titled, "The Importance of Concern." Linda Camp was the class historian.

The class motto was "We've only just begun."

Eisenhower High School is a leader in education in northwest Pennsylvania, and nobody should be ashamed of coming from that area, graduates learned last night at commencement.

Dr. J. Maurice Mahan, a 1962 graduate of that school, addressed the 1972 class of approximately 115 students. Dr. Mahan is a captain in the United States Army and is presently stationed at Ft. Sam Houston, San Antonio.

"Education in the northern end of Warren County has been impressive for some years," Dr. Mahan said. "The facilities and programs offered here not only are keeping pace but are providing leadership for northwest Pennsylvania."

"You not only get a formal education here but you also get a very practical frame of reference for using it," he said.

Dr. Mahan said that good schools don't just happen.

"They are the result of the interest and concern on the part of teachers, administrators and parents."

"The residents in this area have always had a concern for making things better for their children and for giving them advantages that they never had."

"We need to continue that spirit and we need to be concerned for our children."

"That really starts now for you," Dr. Mahan said.

Dr. Mahan said we need also to be concerned with the physical environment—how safe it is—and for the social and emotional world.

He said there is more concern for the quality of life now—not just for now but for those who will come after us.

He said it will take much work, and he told how the challenge can be accepted and how there can be enjoyment in accomplishing the task.

He concluded his talk by quoting from Robert Frost's "Stop By Woods on a Snowy Evening."

Awards were cited as follows:

Curtis Carlson won the athlete of the year award, the Bausch and Lomb science award and the William H. Danforth "I Dare You" award.

David VanOrd and Jo Lynn Beedle won the physical education award.

The foreign language award went to Susan Williams; the math award to Ronald Ristau; and the agriculture award to Paul Brown.

Natalie Beyeler was named instrumentalist of the year and she also received the William H. Danforth "I Dare You" award.

The vocalist of the year is Deborah Hutley.

Sue Bauer won the speech award and Roberta Durlin the library award.

The salutatory address was by Elburn C. Briggs and the valedictory address by Stephen M. Thorson. Roberta A. Durlin was the class historian.

Diplomas were presented by Karl H. Hoffman and William A. Hollister, members of the Warren County School District board of education.

The academic awards were presented by Ralph L. Brown, principal, and the honors awards by John M. Neese, assistant principal. The invocation and the benediction were by the Rev. David Venberg.

Zavinski Stresses Imagination Plus Ambition And Will To Work As Goals After Graduation

By LENORE MCINTYRE

To the organ strains of "Pomp and Circumstance," the Class of 1972 was led in the processional to the stage of the auditorium at Tidioute High School Wednesday by the president and vice president of the Class of 1973, Patty Shanley and John McGraw. The stage was decorated in the class colors, with baskets of white chrysanthemums and carnations in shades of blue, and potted palms, with the graduates in blue caps and gowns, the girls in a pale blue and the boys in a deeper shade.

The Class Roll includes Edward Joseph Alberth Jr., Charles Thomas Benner, Deborah Jean Bonnar, Laura J. Craft, Vicky Darlene Fike, Douglas Lee Gibson, Donna Rae Hannah, Max Quentin Hardy, Patricia Lynn Hardy, Nancy Louise Johnson, William Earl Johnson, Edward Arthur Kernick, Carolyn Marie Knight, Rickey Allen McAfoose, Gretchen Elaine Morrison, Linda Mae Raybuck, Margaret Ann Rondinelli, Sharon Lynn Snavley, Margaret Ann Terwilliger, Richard Allen Sveda, Crystal Ann Tipton and Karen June Yucha.

Not present to participate in the commencement exercises was Crystal Tipton who has taken her senior year at the Sveskolan in Visby, Sweden, through the Warren Rotary Club's exchange student program. "Crystal Tipton's diploma was accepted by her parents, George and Lois Tipton."

Following the invocation on the 93rd annual commencement exercises by the Rev. Robert L. Zorn of Tidioute Presbyterian Church, the Class of 1972 was greeted by Melvin G. Keller, president of the Warren County School Board.

Nancy Johnson gave the salutatory address titled "All Things Must Pass," a farewell to the activities of high school years and saying 'goodbye' to the class in several languages, Russian, Spanish, Chinese, French and Hawaiian. In her final salute to classmates, she said "As these things pass away-sayonara-goodbye."

Sharon Snavley's valedictory speech, "Hearts Filled With Gratitude," expressed appreciation to parents, teachers, community and God; to parents, for security and help and understanding; to teachers, for their efforts to prepare the graduates for an adult world; to the community, a healthy, happy place to live and a town which had supported the class in its activities; and to God "for keeping us happy, healthy and alive."

Karen Yucha, third honor student, introduced the commencement speaker, John M. Zavinski, of the Class of 1952, who spoke on "The Past - Present or Future." He recalled his own graduation night when

Top-Down Philosophy In Approaching World Problems Condemned At WAHS

Warren Area High School's commencement speaker last night condemned what he called the top-down philosophy in approaching world problems.

Dr. Scott C. Mohr argued that the bottom-up approach can stave off a crisis and lead towards that better world men always dream about.

The 1958 WAHS graduate said that too often people feel the forces threatening mankind are so massive that the role of ordinary people in combatting them appears insignificant.

The assistant professor of chemistry at Boston University told the 1972 graduating class that commencement represents an exciting moment of independence—a move from youth to adulthood and acceptance of responsibility for the future.

Dr. Mohr said that we must, however, seriously consider the possibility that within our lifetimes human society will disintegrate and instead of a newer, better world we will be witnesses to the beginning of a dark age.

He referred to the works of some somber-minded analysis that predict an end to civilization as we know it.

"They programmed computers to calculate certain very basic things such as industrial and agricultural production, total population, rate of waste accumulation, etc."

"The startling conclusion they reached was that the world system will suddenly collapse sometime in the early part of the 21st century — 30 to 50 years hence."

He said that attempts to predict the future - even the weather - have been notoriously inaccurate.

In a scientific analogy, Dr. Mohr referred to organisms which existed during the early stages of evolution millions of years ago and later in evolution.

"At a very crucial point multi-celled organisms emerged and became dominant. Multi-celled creatures are much more versatile than single-celled ones, but their existence depends critically upon the healthy functioning of all their cells."

"Human society resembles a multi-celled organism," he said. "Its existence depends upon the cooperative, constructive interactions of individual units—people. If the individuals are healthy the society thrives —and vice versa."

Dr. Mohr urged that the graduates strive in their adult lives not just to get ahead but because they "care so much about each other."

Awards, honors and scholarships were presented as follows: Kathryn E. Brennan, Wayne C. McNeal and Virginia A. Potter were cited as National Merit Scholarship finalists. Noted as receiving national merit scholarship letters of commendation were June A. Allen, John S. Donaldson, Elizabeth J. Eaton, Kathryn Farynowski, Gloria A. Massa, William K. McClain, Nancy B. Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our next-door neighbor bought a darling little puppy for their children. Sounds sweet? Well, the children are four and five years of age and they treat the puppy as if it were a stuffed animal. In fact, I am not at all sure they know the difference.

A few days ago I saw the youngest child squeeze the puppy so hard I thought he had killed it. I rushed over and took the pathetic creature out of the youngster's hands. Then I went immediately to the child's mother and told her what had happened. Her response infuriated me. "Oh, Donnie didn't mean to hurt the puppy," she yawned. "He just loves that little doggie to death." I told her she didn't realize how close her language had come to the truth.

Yesterday the five-year-old had the pet in the back yard. He was dressing the puppy in doll's clothes. The skirt was so tight that the puppy was crying in agony. The child had put a hat on the puppy's head and the elastic chin-strap was choking him. Again I went to the mother and complained. This time she got mad and told me she was sick of my interference and to mind my own business.

I want to help that little animal but I don't know what to do next. My husband says he doesn't want me getting into fights with the neighbors—that I have made two attempts and now I should keep quiet. What do YOU say?—Hate To See It.

DEAR SEE: Tell that dumbbell next door that if you witness another act of cruelty against that helpless puppy you are going to call the S.P.C.A. Then do it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Do I have a right to an explanation? If you say no, I promise to keep my mouth shut. If you say yes, I'll show it to my daughter-in-law and tell her to start talking because Ann is on my side.

Last night my son and his wife were playing three-handed bridge. About midnight a car pulled into the driveway and just stood there. I recognized it at once as my ex-husband's Chevrolet Impala. My son went out to the car and stayed ten minutes. He came back and said, "Dad has had a little too much to drink. He doesn't want to come in. He just wants to sit out there and listen to the radio."

With that my daughter-in-law excused herself and went out to the car. She was gone nearly an hour. This, of course, ruined our card game. But worse than that I drove myself nuts trying to figure out what those two were talking about. When my daughter-in-law came back in the house she didn't say one word to explain her lengthy absence. She and my son left shortly after and I've been boiling ever since.

I feel my daughter-in-law owes it to me to tell me what they talked about. When I asked my son if she had told him he replied, "No, I figured it was none of my business." What do you think about it, Ann?—Blacked Out

DEAR OUT: Since your daughter-in-law did not volunteer any information, accept the fact that she is keeping a confidence. Respect her integrity and stop probing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I haven't the guts to tell her to her face. She reads your column every day. Will you print this?

DEAR WIFE: The invitation for our high school's 25th reunion came last week. I'd love to go. Will you please lose 30 pounds so I can be proud of you?—Your Loving Husband

DEAR HUSBAND: I take it YOUR weight is the same. It better be, Bub.

All Apparel To Be Permanently Tagged

Independence Day for many U.S. consumers will arrive one day early this year—specifically, July 3.

On that day, the federal care labelling act takes effect. In the case of some hundred million men and women who will be buying apparel in this country on and after that date, it means independence from worry about garment care. The consumer now has new protection.

How many of us have carefully squirreled away the care instructions for garments only to forget where when we needed them? Labelling is the key. The ever elusive and disappearing hang tag has never been sufficient or totally satisfying.

Now the Federal Trade Commission has stepped in and requires specifically "a label or tag attached or affixed in such a manner that it will not become separated from the product during its useful life."

How great to just look in a garment and find out how to care for it—at any time! Better still, this "care-for-it" has all appropriate specifics included, for regular care and maintenance: washing, drying, ironing, bleaching, dry cleaning, washing machine cycle, temperature, etc. All one has to do is follow directions.

Some care instructions will be pretty brief, but consumers are of age and know what is meant when a label reads "Dry Clean Only" or "Machine Washable."

A recent survey of the Wool Bureau indicates the consumer is so sophisticated she does not always expect machine dryable when a label says machine washable. And since the Wool Bureau for six years has been requiring clear care instructions for machine washable, machine dryable knitwear. Now it intends to strive for detailed instructions on all wool products. Drip dry, dry flat or tumble dry are important specifics in the care and feeding of wool.

Even "piece goods" are to be sold with permanent labels for tender loving care. And now that so much over-the-counter wool is machine washable, the Wool Bureau feels it highly appropriate to reassure the consumer with care instructions; how wool really can be washed and how to care for it. Many sewers have found this hard to believe!

So, as of the long holiday weekend, and for the future, appropriate and accurate care instructions are the order of the day. Everybody should benefit.

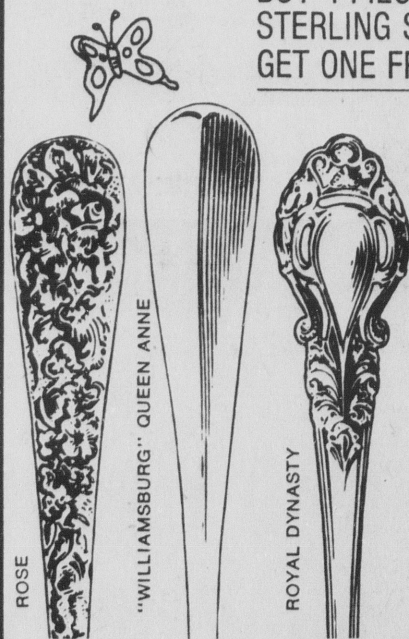

The children of Mrs. Genevieve Mitchell Jordan will observe an open house in honor of her 70th birthday June 4 from 1 to 5 p.m. in the Educational Building of the Sugar Grove United Methodist Church.

Warren Senior Center Orchestra Keeps Members On Their Toes

By JO BETZ
Family Editor

You'd expect an orchestra whose members have over 300 years accumulative experience to sound pretty good.

And that's exactly what the Senior Center Orchestra does—it sounds good.

The group plays every Friday afternoon at the Senior Center on Pennsylvania avenue west for an afternoon of dancing and singing. And, once a month, after a prepared dinner, the group plays for dancing for the center members.

You won't hear any rock and roll numbers, but the group does a good rendition of "Bird in a Gilded Cage," "Memories," "Doodle-Dee-Dee," "Moonlight Bay," and other songs of that era.

Regular members of the orchestra include Pete Linder, 80, on the violin; Gilbert Harrison, 66, on the banjo and violin; Madge Kehm, 74, piano; Del Werle, 70, alto saxophone; and Joe Zimmet, 80, drummer.

Occasional players include Lurlie Kempf, 75, piano; Nan Kirberger, who is over 80, and a resident of Watson Home, harmonica; and Clarence Johnson, who is in his 70's on the accordion; and Hulda Sitler, who only admits to 39 years, but adds, "I'm on Social Security, you can say that," who plays piano.

There is no one leader of the band, although the idea for the group came from Pete Linder a couple of years ago.

"I came down here for a dinner, and after it was over, everyone went home," he said. "This place was deadlier than a door nail—no music, no nothing. I saw the violin sitting on top of the piano, and I figured—we're gonna have music. First we had three, then four, then five players."

Linder, dressed in a red shirt, bell bottom trousers, and a white tie, belying his 80 years, said the group sometimes plays for 100 people on Fridays.

The group also plays for the Warren Grange, and the Golden Age Society at the YWCA.

Linder said he plays the violin and mouth organ, and has played for 60 years or more. He said that although he has had no experience playing in a professional group, "I just play for fun."

Harrison, who plays the banjo and doubles on the violin, began playing the banjo when he was 16 or 17. He has had much professional experience, including a guest spot on the Lawrence Welk TV program 14 or 15 years ago. He said he began playing the violin when he was 6 or 7 years old, but added, "There wasn't enough spark in the violin, so I began playing the banjo too."

Madge Kehm, started playing the piano as a young girl, and played for dances in and around Warren for years. She quit playing for awhile, then when the Senior Center group began, took it up again.

Werle has been playing the alto saxophone for 56 years, and has played professionally all over the area in his younger years. His eyesight is not good, and he said he only had three lessons in his whole life. "Although I understand music, I don't read it," he said. "I play by ear, and have a very good memory. It used to be that if someone would hum a song through once, I could play it—it takes a little more time now to learn a song. I listen to the radio and learn new music that way, except rock and roll—I refuse to call that music."

Zimmet, the drummer, has a different feeling about rock music. "I can play it," he said, "but they don't want to hear it here." He has played in several orchestras, and traveled with a band until he got married, when he quit traveling and formed his own group in 1924. He recently was discharged from the hospital, and said he played with the Senior Center group again for the first time in three months last week.

"I'm a little stiff today," he said. "It takes time to get back into the swing of things after you haven't played for awhile."

Hulda Sitler, who fills in on the piano, and plays mostly waltzes, has also played professionally. She had the Youngsville Townsend Kitchen Band, which toured by bus all over the country several years ago.

Lurlie Kempf, 75, plays the piano for the group's sing-alongs, held on Fridays. She plays mostly ragtime, hymns and patriotic songs. She said she has played piano for 55 years, and the organ since she was 12. She played the organ in the Presbyterian Church in Clarion, and has played in and around Warren for the past 30 years.

When listening to the band, it's very clear that not only the players are enjoying themselves, but the Center members who listen and dance to their music enjoy it too.

Mrs. Moran Receives Gift

Helen Moran Feted At Retirement Tea

Mrs. Helen Moran, who has worked at Warren State Hospital for the past 19 years, was honored Tuesday at a retirement reception tea, given by the administrative staff of Central Unit.

The reception was held at the Central Unit, which includes patients from four counties, Warren, Forest, Venango, and Clarion.

Mrs. Moran began work at the State Hospital in April, 1953 as an attendant in Nursing Service. Over the years, she has been promoted several times, and has been a clerk-stenographer since January, 1960.

She was born in Warren, and graduated from Sheffield High School and Lock Haven State College. She taught school for seven years, and married the late James Moran, Jr. in 1938.

She is the mother of one daughter, Katy, and three grandchildren.

After her official retirement June 2, Mrs. Moran plans to visit her daughter and grandchildren in North Carolina.

Refreshments for the reception were planned by the administrative staff of the Unit, and the centerpiece and potted plants were furnished by the hospital greenhouse.

Your Family Will Love Home Made Strawberry Jam

Someone once said of strawberries, "Doubtless God could have made a better berry, but doubtless God never did." And if you've experienced the aroma of a springtime strawberry patch or the succulent taste of a fresh strawberry, then you probably agree.

With fresh ripe strawberries now in season, it's the perfect time to preserve them in your own homemade strawberry jam. You can make it easily the short-boil way with powdered fruit pectin so that it's sure to set. Or try the recipe for Pineapple and Strawberry Jelly made with liquid fruit pectin. It's a beautiful way to join the ranks of the strawberry lovers of the world, and a great way to enjoy this delightful fruit all year round.

STRAWBERRY JAM
4½ cups prepared fruit (about 2 qt. fully ripe strawberries)
7 cups (3 lb.) sugar
1 box (1½ oz.) powdered fruit pectin

First prepare the fruit. Stem and thoroughly crush, one layer at a time, about 2 quarts strawberries. Measure 4½ cups into a very large saucepan.

Then make the jam. Measure sugar and set aside. Mix fruit pectin into fruit in saucepan. Place over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil. Immediately add all sugar and stir. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim for 5 minutes to cool slightly and prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover at once with ½ inch hot paraffin. Makes 8½ cups or about 10 (6-oz.) glasses.

PINEAPPLE AND STRAWBERRY JELLY
4 cups prepared juice (1 fully ripe medium pineapple and about 2 qt. fully ripe strawberries)

7 cups (3 lb.) sugar
1 bottle (6 fl. oz.) liquid fruit pectin

First prepare the juice. Pare and chop or grind very fine 1 pineapple. Thoroughly crush, one layer at a time, about 2 quarts strawberries. Place fruits in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. Measure 4 cups into very large saucepan.

Then make the jelly. Thoroughly mix sugar into juice in saucepan. Place over high heat and bring to a boil, stirring constantly. At once stir in fruit pectin. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, skim off foam with metal spoon, and pour quickly into glasses. Cover at once with ½ inch hot paraffin. Makes about 8 cups or 10 (6-oz.) glasses.

Vacation Bible Schools Set

Several churches in the area have begun plans for summer bible school, to be held shortly after completion of the regular school year.

Included are:

STARBRICK COMMUNITY CHURCH

The annual Bible School at the Starbrick Community Church has been planned to begin at 9 a.m. June 5. Daily sessions are to be from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., June 5 to 9. Closing exercises are planned for Sunday, June 11 at 7 p.m.

The theme of the Bible School this year is to be "Exploring with Jesus," and is open to all ages through high school.

Pastor Donald Wells expects a large Bible School this year, the first since he became pastor. The church has arranged free airplane rides for the two children who bring the most visitors. The winners of the contest will take off from the Scandia Airport and be flown over the Kinzua area by Howard Beech, owner of the airstrip.

FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH

The theme for First Lutheran Vacation Bible School this summer is, "My God, My Faith, My Life." The purpose of the course, to be held June 5 to 16, is to enable children to know God, enjoy the relationship between God and His people, and give evidence of the relationship in a life of service and praise.

The two-week school is to start Monday morning and last from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Classes for children between the ages of 3 and 12 are planned. Children of non-Lutheran families are invited to attend.

The staff for this year's Vacation Bible School includes: Mrs. Linda Bartholomew, superintendent; Mrs. Virginia Sturdevant, asst. superintendent; Mrs. Jeanette Skinner, Karen Schumacher, Mrs. Carolyn Hauser, pre-primary I, ages 3-4; Mrs. Mary Alice Billow, Mrs. Lynn Collins, Karen Kuhs, pre-primary II, ages 5-6; Mrs. Bonnie Miller, Mrs. Corine Spattfor, primary; Mrs. Becky Clark, Mrs. Marge Flick, Gretchen Siefert, junior; Mrs. Ruth Huber, Mrs. Jan Peterson, pre-teen; Donna Howard, piano; Mrs. Beverly Bimber, Mrs. Marge Johnson, Mrs. Lois Hodas, kitchen; Bailey D. Herrington, pastor

ST. PAUL LUTHERAN

Vacation Church School at St. Paul Lutheran Church, corner Division and Conewango is to begin June 5 and continue through June 9, from 9 to 11:30 a.m. daily. Children age three through those completing sixth grade may enroll. All children of the church are invited to participate, as well as children who live in the neighborhood who are not children of the church. Opening exercises are to be held in the sanctuary each morning at 9 a.m.

Today's Best Bets

By RUTH LINDBERG

The third in a series of "The Billy Graham Crusade" from Charlotte, N. C. will be seen at 8:00 p.m. on WJAC and WKBW. Dr. Graham's topic will be "Youth—the University Life." This will be the final program of the series. Guests include: Miami Dolphins tackle Norm Evans and singers Ray Hildebrand and Norman and Cheryl Sanders.

NBC star Flip Wilson was honored on May 25 as the 1972 "Broadcaster of the Year" by the International Radio and Television Society at a luncheon meeting in New York. He was presented with a plaque which bears the following citation.

"The International Radio and Television Society is pleased to honor an ingenious comic artist. In his popular variety program, he brought new styles of humor to television, and put a fresh twist on traditional themes. He gave us television's liveliest, most exciting new characters, including Geraldine, Reverend Leroy, Freddie the Playboy, Sonny the Janitor and Ralph, the Invisible Dog. What we saw was what we got."

This week Barbara McNair, the comedy team of Jerry Stiller and Anne Meara, and special guest Roy Clark team with him on "The Flip Wilson Show" at 8:00 p.m. on WGR and WICU. In a skit set aboard an ocean liner, Barbara and Anne play lonely girls who meet lonely deck hands Flip and Jerry.

An interesting little news release from NBC News states that Bob Hope will be invested an Honorary Doctor of Humanities in a special convocation to be held on the campus of Wilberforce University, Wilberforce, Ohio, today, June 1.

It will be the second honorary degree presented to an entertainer by the oldest Negro college in the nation. The first was given to Sammy Davis Jr. Other notable who have been similarly honored by the university include President Richard M. Nixon, who was vice president at the time.

The return of "My World and Welcome to It" will be seen at 8:00 p.m. on WBN, WFBG and WSEE. The program draws its basis from the whimsical writings and drawing of James Thurber. John Monroe, played by William Windom, is a Thurber-like cartoonist-writer who is drawn into an argument with his implacable 11-year-old daughter, who is leaving home.

"The CBS Thursday Night Movie" on WBN, WFBG and WSEE at 9:00 p.m. will feature "The Comedians" starring Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor. The movie is actually Graham Greene's study of people caught up in Papa Doc's violent reign of terror.

Chief Ironside (Raymond Burr) travels to Tokyo in an attempt to prevent the murder of a Japanese officer who befriended him in the final days of World War II on "Ironside" at 9:00 p.m. on WGR, WJAC and WICU.

Public Broadcasting

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) discusses his prospects in Tuesday's California Primary on "Thirty Minutes" at 8:00 p.m.

"A Memory of Two Mondays" is a powerful performance of Arthur Miller's 1955 comedy-drama, which will open a series about life during the depression on "NET Playhouse" at 8:30 p.m. The scene is the shipping room of a Manhattan auto-parts warehouse, much like the one where Miller worked in the early Thirties. There is little plot; the emphasis is on the mood and characterization as Miller draws on his own experiences to picture what the Depression was like for workers to whom a job — any job — was everything. Jack Warden stars.

Girard Taxpayers Protest School Levy

GIRARD — Girard taxpayers will meet with school district officials today to protest a proposed 26-mill tax increase. On Monday, May 15, school directors adopted a preliminary budget for more than $2.5 million for the 1972-73 school year — an increase in taxes to a total of 74 mills. Twenty of the 26 mills will go toward the cost of constructing a new high school.

Your Individual Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars. FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 1, 1972
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20) — Your planets, going into increasingly more favorable aspect, suggest that you note all details and strategy well. Keep eyes front, energies well directed.
TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21) — A good day for stabilizing, settling pending matters generally; also for making innovations which can insure further improvement in your status.
GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — Some renewed interest in past endeavors indicated, with greater probability of success now. Personal relationships highly favored.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Give careful consideration to all suggestions — what to accept, reject or, perhaps, modify. You may have to introduce an idea of your own in order to achieve your objectives.
LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23) — This will be a day in which to emphasize your distinctiveness and finesse; for doing things in an unusual way. Fine influences stimulate your outgoing personality.
VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) — Avoid present tendencies toward brusqueness, even sarcasm, in conversation with others. Personal relationships under some affliction: Do NOT make things worse.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) — Gains indicated in endeavor where the personal touch counts. Concentrate on quality instead of quantity, and do capitalize on your artistic abilities.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) — Make sure you have checked all facts and factors before making agreements or taking on extra obligations. But do not quibble foolishly and lose out.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) — Be sensibly cautious in making investments (of time OR money) — but not jittery. Emphasize the Sagittarian's traditional good judgment and foresight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Handling even the smallest assignments well can bring fine returns now — and the promise of even better opportunities to profit later. So... Your best!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Be circumspect in writings, careful in signing papers, handling the affairs of others. Accuracy essential now.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) — Lack of proper planning could get you off to a bad start. Day calls for meticulous care, accuracy and only the BEST of endeavor. Take nothing for granted.

YOU BORN TODAY are highly individualistic and so versatile that you could succeed in almost any field of your choice — with the proper training, of course; could especially excel in writing, music or any occupation which involves travel. You yen for travel, in fact, could lead you into the field of exploration, with great success. You are highly imaginative, original in your thinking and enjoy association with alert, progressive people. No matter what career you finally settle upon, your originality will evidence itself. On the personal side, you are gregarious, warm-hearted and generous almost to a fault. Try to conquer tendencies toward extreme moodiness, however. Birthdate of: Brigham Young, founder of the Mormons.

How To Keep Well Collective Upbringing

By Dr. T.R. Van Dellen

There is a lot to be said about day care centers for small children. In the U.S.S.R., for example, collective upbringing has been in effect since 1956. The educational system of the Soviets is entirely different from ours. There is, however, no doubt that Russian children are well behaved and seem to be happy.
Trained personnel assume the maternal role. The plan begins at age 2 and initially the little fellows (in groups of six or eight) are kept in large playpens. Common ownership, self-reliance, and obedience are emphasized. There is constant reinforcement of what is taught. According to Prof. Urie Bronfenbrenner (Two Worlds of Childhood, U.S. and U.S.S.R.) of Cornell University, physical punishment is not part of the scheme. Instead, love, what the child wants and needs most, is withdrawn. Encouragement and praise are given only when trying to correct a fault.
Children learn from watching others and rejection is one of their greatest fears. But the day-to-day attention, with physical fondling and handling, and solicit business play a major role in childhood attitudes and behavior. An American study conducted several years ago by Harold Skeels involved a number of retarded children. The youngsters were divided into two groups. Thirteen were placed in the care of women inmates and the remainder served as controls. Within 18 months, the I.Q. of the experimental group rose 28 points.

During the same period, the I.Q. of the control group dropped 28 points.
Children who were mothered (as they might be in a day care center) were adopted and 30 years later were found to be self-supporting. Those in the control group either had died or remained institutionalized.
In Russia, the child enters formal school at the age of 7. Team and group efforts are rewarded, rather than individual efforts. Peer groups get special training for exhibiting the desired influence on the child. Older classmates and adults are made the shining examples. Perhaps the rationale is that virtue is no less contagious than sin. However, Prof. Bronfenbrenner mentioned two disadvantages of collective upbringing. First, the system is expensive and second, it tends to foster alienation of parents and teachers.
TOMORROW: Vaccines Today.
Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.
SINUS CONGESTION
M.M. writes: What is the best way to break up congestion under the eyes due to sinus trouble?
REPLY
Good drainage must be obtained in the nose to allow the air to go in and out of the sinuses and the purulent material to escape. Start by having the infection eliminated.
MINERALS
B.H. writes: How can we be certain we are getting enough minerals in our food?
REPLY
The mixed, balanced diet should provide an adequate amount. Our leaflet on minerals lists the chief minerals and the foods in which they are found. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for this leaflet.
VITAMIN C SURPLUS
G.E. writes: What would happen if a person took too much vitamin C?
REPLY
Nothing. The excess is eliminated by the kidneys.

The bidding:

1 ♣ 1 ♥ 3 ♣ Pass
6 ♣ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠

Lest a casual examination of the bidding diagram presented above leads the reader to the conclusion that he is the victim of a typographical error, let me hasten to reassure him concerning its accuracy. A few years ago, C. C. Wei, born in China but a long time citizen of the United States, developed a new bidding system which he appropriately christened "Precision." It was designed to simplify bidding by dividing opening bids into two groups—strong hands and holdings or intermediate and lesser strength.

In the Precision system, an opening bid of one club is artificial and employed to designate a hand containing at least 16 high card points. Other opening bids are therefore limited to lesser values. If responder has less than 8 high card points, he bids one diamond if his partner has opened with one club. Any other response is positive and designates a minimum of eight points. There is of course much more to the system than this and anyone who is interested is invited to pick up a copy of my book on Precision (Charles H. Goren presents the Precision System) which in one year has become one of the all time best sellers in the bridge field.

The system has enjoyed a spectacular success in the field of tournament bridge since its inception. A team of relatively unknown and internationally inexperienced Chinese players using Precision finished second for two straight years in the International Team Championship in 1969 and 1970. More recently a group of young men from New York and Connecticut have won three of the last four major United States National Team Titles.

The hand presented today netted a huge swing to the Precision team in the final round of the Vanderbilt Team-of-Four recently held in Cincinnati.

Tom Stuart, seated South, opened the bidding with one club, describing a hand with 16 or more high card points (he held 18). West made a sub-par overall of one heart and Eugene Neiger's jump response of three clubs, indicates at least eight high card points and a broken six card suit. Reinforced with this knowledge, Stuart realized that a small slam in clubs could hinge—at worst—on a heart finesse. Without further ado, then, he leaped to six clubs.

The play was routine. The jack of spades was opened and won by North's ace as South discarded a heart. The queen of clubs was led for a finesse and when West's ten appeared, declarer repeated the finesse—picking up East's king on the third round. Diamonds were led next and when the suit divided evenly, Stuart claimed 13 tricks, six clubs, five diamonds, one heart, and one spade. The profit for the vulnerable small slam was 1,390 points.

At the other table, the players seated North and South were using standard methods so South opened the bidding with one heart, North lacked the high card strength to respond at the two level, holding only nine high card points, so he bid one spade. Altho South's rebid of two diamonds left much in reserve, he felt obliged to proceed cautiously until a fit was uncovered.

North gave his partner another chance by bidding two no trump and now South chose to rebid three diamonds. North felt that any further action on his part would be throwing caution to the winds and he passed. The ten of clubs was opened and North's jack held the first trick. Altho 11 tricks were there for the taking with all hands exposed, South tried to ruff some hearts in dummy instead of drawing trump. The second round of trumps was ruffed with the ten of diamonds and overruffed by East's jack and a club return was trumped by West. By the time the play was completed, South ended up with eight tricks and a 100 point deficit on the deal. The total profit to the Precision Team was 1,490 points which represented two-thirds of their victory margin in the match.

John Herriott

Horses Galore In Hoxie Circus

Circus historians always felt that when the mechanical miracles took over the circus, something was lost. The biggest change was the demise of the work horse. One of the travelling circuses in this country recently went an entire year without one horse on the tour. In the old days, this was the origin of the "one horse show."

This year's Hoxie Bros. Circus is far from a one horse show. And the man responsible for this is pictured here. Coming from a long line of American circus and horse exhibitors is John Herriott. John was, until this season, the equestrian director for the Ringling Bros. Circus. Assisted by his wife and family, John this year has brought the Hoxie Bros. Circus into the big time.

First coming to fame with the old Mills Bros. Circus, Herriott travelled to Europe to master the secrets of the continent's best horsemen. His great Liberty Horse production will never be forgotten. His next move was director of the production of the Circus World Museum, showplace of Baraboo, Wisconsin. There Herriott and his family stayed for a number of years as this attraction grew and prospered. This advance was not unnoticed by the Ringling management, and soon Herriott was offered the position of responsibility with the "greatest show on earth."

But the lure of the mud-shows burns deep in the heart of the showman, and when Leonard B. Tucker approached Herriott to take over the performance of this year's greatly enlarged show, Herriott jumped at the chance. According to the reviews along the route, the Hoxie-Herriott marriage has been completely successful.

The show this week played their most important engagement thus far on the Lakefront Showgrounds in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. The exact same production will be in Warren for two performances at the Airport Showgrounds, 2 and 8 p.m., on Wednesday June 21st. Tickets at reduced prices are now on sale from all members of the sponsoring North Warren Kiwanis Club.

Forest Service Has New Book

Allegheny National Forest Supervisor Ralph H. Freeman announced the release today of a new publication dealing with Forest Service programs and activities throughout the 20-state Eastern Region over the last year.

Titled "...a little rebellion now and then," the report attempts to explore the Forest Service relationship in this Region to surrounding social and political issues, which are becoming an increasingly important part of land use and management.

In making the announcement, Supervisor Freeman remarked that the "American public is to be credited with a large part of the substance of this report. There has been an awakening of public attitudes, a difficult awakening at times; but in the long run, I think we will all be thankful for this growing insistence to play a role in the decisions involved with government administration."

People wishing a copy of this report should write: Forest Supervisor, Allegheny National Forest, Warren, Pa. 16365. They are available in a very limited supply.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
If you have the problem of how to dress a "teenage doll" for a special gift, why not try my solution?

Make her an artist!
Sew up a colorful smock using a dress pattern with long sleeves.

For the tam, cut a circle from a scrap of black velvet and gather onto a band fitting the doll's head.

Then, from cardboard cut a palette to fit her hand. And here is where Dad can get into the act.

He can construct a miniature easel from dowels, bamboo sticks or ice cream sticks, and tiny "canvases" can be cut from heavy cardboard.

After all the canvases have been filled with blobs of color, she might have her own "one-doll" exhibit...

Granny

Though my neighbor kept her children clean, they always had somewhat the appearance of being ragamuffins. And I couldn't understand why.

Then one day she gave me a batch of clothes her children had outgrown. Every single thing needed mending somewhere. That was the reason!

This fact is helping me to remember it does make a difference if I'm using a pin instead of the button, or that the ripped seam should be sewn.

I know it's hard to find the time, but try to do a little each day, maybe while you're watching TV.

Tidioute High School Band played lively marching music for the Memorial Day parade Monday and also rendered several selections at the exercises held at the cemetery. Band director is Charles Huffman.

Senior Citizens Observe Second Anniversary

Thirty-six Senior Citizens of Tidioute observed the second anniversary of the organization's founding with a roast turkey dinner at Mt. Grange Hall on May 25.

Entertainment for the evening included piano music by a new member, Arthur Myers, and group singing.

A new food committee was appointed for the coming year.

New Tables At Mt. Grange Hall

Mountain Grange has purchased ten new metal tables for the dining hall, it was announced at the Friday night meeting. A report was given on the recent Senior Citizens dinner prepared and served by Grange ladies and permission was granted for a wedding reception in the hall.

A report on the recent Seventh Degree ceremonies held at Diamond Grange in Tiona was given by Mrs. Donald Dashner and Paul Thomas. A visitation meeting will be held at Mountain Grange on June 23.

Grangers were pleased to note that there was no one on the sick list and no bills to be paid. Lunch was served by Mrs. Earl Yeager and Mrs. John Gerus.

Bible School Set Week Of June 12

A community vacation Bible school will be conducted at First United Methodist Church the week of June 12-16. Morning sessions will be held from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.

The school is a joint effort of First United Methodist Church and St. John's RC Church. Mrs. Lee Baker is coordinator and the staff will consist of teachers from the three churches.

A general ecumenical curriculum will be used and all youngsters from pre-school through the sixth grade are invited to participate, regardless of any or no church affiliation.

The team received a trophy and individual medals. The event was to be televised on Penn State Sports.

Tidioute Girl On Trike Team

During the recent spring week festivities at Penn State, the Grand Prix Association conducted a tricycle race on parking lot no. 80. The chapel choir team, consisting of Marje Schmonck, Kathy King of Tidioute, Jane Gitschier and Sylvia Mand, easily won the relay, wearing green checkered uniforms which they had made for the occasion.

The team received a trophy and individual medals. The event was to be televised on Penn State Sports.

Special Meeting For VFW Ladies

A special meeting of the VFW Auxiliary has been called for Monday, June 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the post rooms. Purpose of the session is to make plans for the annual Auxiliary birthday dinner in June, and to decide on a time and place.

All members are urged to attend as the April and May meetings were so poorly represented by members that, lacking a quorum, no business could be transacted.

Barnes Area News Notes

Sunday services in Barnes United Methodist Church honored the seven members of the 1972 graduating class of Sheffield High School from Barnes. Six members were present for the service. Merle Anderson, Sheffield, sang "Hold Thou My Hand". Rev. George Campbell had for his text, "Tell Me About It", from John 2:16-33.

The bake sale held on the church lawn, Saturday morning, was a great success. The members of the Omega Class who sponsored the sale wish to thank all those who helped.

Saturday at 1:30 p.m., the Ruth M. Smith Home is celebrating its 50th Anniversary and all are invited to attend. Bishop Roy C. Nichols will be the speaker.

Word has been received of the death of Mrs. Bertha (Anderson) Mattheson, Ridgway, at the Lutheran Home, Kane, Wednesday, May 24th. Mrs. Mattheson was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Axel Anderson, former Barnes residents who owned the home now resided in by the Frank Dilick family.

Gilbert Allen and family, Altoona, Pa., Ben Allen, Jr., Rochester, N.Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Allen from Buffalo, N.Y. were guests during the weekend at the home of Mrs. Grace Allen.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fitch, Jay, and Sally, attended the graduation exercises at Edinboro Campus, Sunday, May 21st, when their daughter and sister, Cindy Blodgett was graduated.

Among many former residents who visited Barnes Cemetery Memorial Day were Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Silves, Northeast, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McCoil, Mr. and Mrs. Keith McCoil, Jamestown, N.Y. Mr. and Mrs. Norman Whitton, Ripley, N.Y. and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Fox, Warren. Mrs. Fox, former Helena Whitton, reports recently visiting Mrs. Martha Jeffords in Gerry, N.Y. and Maude Shaw at Rouse. She reports both ladies in good spirits and doing well.

Many of our people attended the various Memorial services held throughout the county. The Sheffield program was well attended. William Weidner gave the address "Not So Long Ago", and the songs of the S.H.S. choir and Wolverine Band music were all very appropriate. Fourteen members were on the list of the Veterans who have died since last Memorial Day and there is a list of twenty-three Veterans of World War I in the area who still remain. One Spanish American War Veteran who was born and lived in this area until 1968 still lives in Little Hocking, Ohio. "Twig" Claude Jeffords is one of the very few such vets and will be 93 years on June 10th, 1972.

George M. Conquer entertained at a family dinner Memorial Day at his home, Yankee Bush Rd. Warren. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. John Hoffman and sons, Warren, and Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Conquer and Larry, Barnes. Larry returned to his school in Johnstown, Monday evening, after spending the week end at his home here.

Mrs. Bertha Holden, Mrs. Grace Allen and Mr. Walter Hoyer attended the Governor's Day dinner in the Hospitality Center last Thursday evening. The Kitchen Band was on hand to help with the entertainment. Speeches were made by Norman Taylor, deputy secretary of Dept. of Public Welfare, Pittsburgh, and Father John T. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey B. Howard will take over directorship of center June 1, 1972.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Snyder Jr. and family, Central Bridge, N.Y. spent the week end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Snyder Sr. They visited his father at the Warren General hospital and found him much improved in health.

During a very impressive ceremony last Thursday night, four Eagle Scouts were acclaimed from the Sheffield-Barnes area. For forty-three years there has been a Boy Scout troop in the area and there have been twenty boys who have attained the high goal—(Three of the boys were from Barnes; Curt Bowley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bowley was the honored recipient of the Eagle Award Thursday from analysis in an effort to evaluate the true economic potential of underground gasification.

In the most widely-used version of the technique, invented by the Russians, small-diameter wells are bored to the foot of a coal seam and linked by a horizontal hole cut across its floor.

The bottom of the seam is ignited and, with the help of air coming down one shaft, the coal begins to smolder.

The gases resulting from this combustion are piped off through a second well and used to drive a turbine that generates electricity.

Coal ash stays underground. No surface land has to be disturbed. No miners' lives are jeopardized and health hazards are not created.

"The main problem with underground gasification," says Dr. Farouq Ali, "is that the gases generated are of lower heating value than is desirable. Special turbines would have to be developed to capture larger quantities of this gas than are normally necessary to drive a turbine."

underground gasification was experimented with in Britain and the United States and discarded as uneconomical.

"Mining costs have skyrocketed. The health and safety of miners is more on the public conscience, and the pollution generated by conventional methods of mining and utilizing coal—smoke, dust, fly ash, scars on the land—are of paramount national concern."

According to the Penn State professor, underground gasification, wherever it is used, would virtually eliminate both the pollution problems and the need for miners to go underground.

The technique was first suggested in 1888 by the father of the periodic table of the elements, Dmitri Mendeleev. Its use was urged by Lenin, and the Russians began large-scale operations in the early 1930s.

It is not known in the west, says Dr. Farouq Ali, whether the Russians have stopped work on gasification or are keeping mum on what they are doing.

Many technical problems remain to be solved but Dr. Ali is subjecting what is already known to precise mathematical

New Coal Gasification Plan May Ease Energy Shortage

UNIVERSITY PARK—Relief from one of America's most pernicious forms of pollution may lie smoldering under the ground—in the Soviet Union.

It's called coal gasification and involves the deliberate "smoldering" of coal in its natural site.

To date, the Russians have been its most active practitioners.

Now, however, a Penn State scientist believes the technique may be more economical than is generally regarded in the west, especially if the pollution clean-up costs entailed by conventional coal mining are taken into account.

Dr. S.M. Farouq Ali, associate professor of petroleum and natural gas engineering, is making computer models of the technical factors involved in underground gasification. They may make it possible for a mine operator to determine whether gasification is profitable in any particular situation.

"In coal," says Dr. Farouq Ali, "we now face a vastly different situation than we did some twenty years ago when

It Wasn't Really Memorial Day

By Paul Reichart

Memorial Day dawned bright and beautiful this year—a perfect day to trot out the old war horses, veterans of battles long forgotten, and remind them we do care...at least one day each year.

It wasn't really Memorial Day. General John A. Logan, back in 1868, decided Memorial Day should be observed each May 30. This year we observed Memorial Day on May 29—a Monday—so that millions of Americans could have an extra day to risk their lives on the highways so they might cram themselves into sylvan campgrounds along with millions of other Americans.

America uses Memorial Day, the most solemn of our annual holidays, for revelry. Every year it becomes less the day to remember dead veterans and more the day to kick off the summer vacation season.

In Warren, at least, there are a few who are old enough to remember a just war and care enough to salute those who died with the conviction they were doing something for "freedom." A modest sized crowd turned out at Oakland Cemetery Monday morning to turn back the clock and remember small boys that lived here and played on these streets and then went away decades ago to fight their collective fears.

They gave their lives willingly, we like to think...knowing full well they would have come back alive if they could and their lives, although given in glory, were given begrudgingly.

How many, I wonder, wished they could ask the men, whose bones now lie under the spring-green grass at the GAR Circle, what it was like to die for "freedom"...on the cold snow of Europe or the tepid Pacific beaches; in the Korean mire or the Vietnamese jungles.

Their answers, I think, would be varied. Some would be proud, others would feel cheated. A few, especially those that perished in the recent Asian "police actions," would still be searching for meaning...a reason for their untimely deaths.

Their stories would certainly unmask the sadness and frustrations of their loved ones feelings that are submerged each Memorial Day by the pomp and military ceremony conjured up by scrub-faced high school bands and proud veterans.

Perhaps in the future Memorial Day will mark the beginning of summer vacation...period. I think not. But I do think Memorial Day, as we knew it in 1972, will disappear from the face of the earth.

There will still be compassionate people in the country to remember the tragedies of war. The mode of military recognition, however, seems less significant today than in years past. The veterans of my generation, fed up with the hypocrisy of Vietnam, choose to reject observances with a military flavor.

Barring another national holocaust, the bands may cease to march before the end of the century. As the war dead become less personal and more historical, Memorial Day will become less a day for star-spangled pomp and rifle salutes and more a day for individual reflection.

When we no longer have to hide our hurts with images of heroism and are able to recognize these men as the innocent victims of international madness we'll be on the road to understanding why they died...and why we, the people of Earth, should never let it happen again.

House Votes To Expand Power Of Migrant Camp Regulations

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The House voted unanimously Wednesday to expand the regulatory powers of the state Department of Labor and Industry over migrant labor camps.

The measure, sent back to the Senate for concurrence in House amendments, would give the labor secretary the authority to issue licenses to migrant camps and close any camps operating without one.

A provision added by the House Labor Relations Committee stipulates the secretary will inspect premises within 30 days of a license application and issue a temporary license. Then, after a review he will issue a one-year license that could be revoked at any time.

All dwellings maintained directly or indirectly for persons working on farms are covered.

Penalties for operating a camp without a license would range from $50 or 10 days in jail for a first offense to $500 and up to six months imprisonment for subsequent violations.

Philly Chamber Rapped For 'Erroneous' Ads

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The chairman of a Senate committee joined Gov. Shapp Wednesday in assailing the Chamber of Commerce's budget-cutting advertising campaign. But at the same time he invited the group to present its proposals at a hearing next week.

Sen. Benjamin Donolow, D-Philadelphia, said a newspaper advertisement to appear Thursday was "erroneous and misleading."

He said the ad, placed by the Philadelphia chamber, will state that reducing the corporate net income tax from 12 per cent to 7 per cent would save $76 million. But Donolow claimed that the 5 per cent reduction would really produce a $250 million savings for the businessmen.

"I would be in favor of reducing the tax if it cost only $76 million," Donolow, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said in a floor speech. The Chamber of Commerce is running newspaper ads urging legislators to cut the $3.6 billion budget by $440 million while also calling for reduction in the personal income tax from 2.3 per cent to 2 per cent.

Shapp last week termed the tactic "the most misleading public relations in the history of Pennsylvania."

Donolow said he has invited the state and Philadelphia Chambers to appear at a hearing next Thursday, "not to argue with them," but "so they can present their position and tell us where we can cut $440 million they set forth in their advertising."

He said telegrams were sent Wednesday.

There are 1,113,000 students enrolled in Massachusetts' public schools. There are 121 institutions of higher education.

Enjoying The Pool

Youngsville Pool Now In Use

There were 321 admissions to Brokenstraw Valley swimming pool on Saturday when it opened for the season — two days earlier than usual, in near-perfect weather. On Sunday, with the water a delightful and rare-for-May 72 degrees warm, 306 went through the gate. Memorial Day brought out 395, with the peak session for the holiday weekend being Monday afternoon, when 312 were there.

Inexplicably, as at other local holiday events, the turn out was not as high as usual. But a lot of people would just as soon have it that way at the pool! It makes for better swimming!

About 140 season memberships have been purchased, more than a third of them family tickets. They are still available. Next Saturday and Sunday, June 3 and 4, between 1 p.m. and 3 p.m., children and adults interested in free Red Cross swimming lessons may sign up for the sessions beginning on Monday, June 12.

Some time this week a new fiberglass diving board is due to arrive. Area residents are reminded that the Recreation Commission has a list of needs for the pool and associated park and recreational area that would make excellent memorial gifts.

Kenneth Johnson is the Commission chairman, and Jay Regis Thompson the treasurer. They will be pleased to supply information.

Ancient Tombstone Plaque Sought From Young's Grave

Seven-year-old Ronnie Vavala, Pittsfield RD 1, paused for a few moments after the Memorial Day service at the Youngville I.O.O.F. cemetery, beside this, one of the most modest markers there. The flag holder indicated it was the grave of a Revolutionary War soldier. Flower pots pushed into the earth at its base were empty.

A metal plaque used to be on the marker, recording that Matthew Young was the founder of Youngville. It was removed for restoration several years ago, and was lost track of. Mrs. Joan Archbold, who recently acquired the John's Jeweler's business on East Main street, Youngville, understands it may have been taken there for the work to be done, and says she will look for it as she sorts through accumulated old goods on the premises.

Matthew Young died while away on a trip and his body was returned here for burial. It was removed with others from a downtown burial ground for re-interment in the I.O.O.F. cemetery, when that was opened on the hillside near Indian Camp Run road in 1868. Matthew Young came to the Brokenstraw Valley in 1796 to carve what he is said to have called "a beautiful prospect" from the wilderness, with his axe. He built the first inn in 1808, gave school lessons, arranged the land sale which opened the way for establishing the site of the borough in 1813 and built the first road in 1814. He went on to become the first treasurer of Warren County, and one of two men who personally guaranteed the county's tax payments when it was "flat broke".

The board of directors of the I.O.O.F. cemetery, and their employees, are to be congratulated for the excellent condition of the cemetery. Under the direction of Don Miller, seven or eight youths began part-time work about a month ago, removing the winter's accumulation of debris, clipping shrubbery, mowing and re-setting, levelling and hand-trimming around markers, many of which are more than a century old.

Treasurer Frank Hendrickson says he paid out more than $3200 in wages to last year's work crew. The jobs are eagerly sought by high school and college boys. There is still demand for lots in the cemetery and Mr. Hendrickson has received requests from four couples this week. Efforts are made to recover unused plots from families no longer likely to use them for reasons such as moving from the area; and a section long reserved as the "G.A.R. Plot" was recently opened up for general use.

Summer Classes Planned Here

Driver's education, health, personal typing classes and summer band school will be offered at Youngsville High School under the Warren County School District Summer School program. John Sechrist, principal, announces that the teachers will include YHS faculty members Paula Mead (health), Harvey Shapiro (driver's education) and John Smith (band).

The school will start on Monday, June 12. The health, driving and personal typing classes will end on June 28. The band school will be from June 12 to June 20, and July 10 to July 28, and students will be individually scheduled by Mr. Smith.

Students' make up and accelerated classes will be offered at Beaty Junior High School, and a special bus will be provided for those registering from Youngsville High School. It will leave the school at 7:20 a.m. and return at approximately 12:50 p.m.

Accelerated courses available are Algebra I, Algebra II, Unified Geometry and Problems of Democracy. They are scheduled from June 12 to June 30 and from July 10 to July 28.

Students or adults wishing to enroll or ask questions should contact Tom Craig of the Youngsville High School guidance office (563-7503) or, at Beaty, Deane Passmore, guidance counselor, or John Sechrist, principal. The Beaty telephone numbers are 723-5200 or 723-5201.

Remember Old Memorial Day Custom?

Memorial Day stirs memories of old customs—and one that stirred in the minds of many local people on Monday was that of Youngsville school children, from grades 1 through 12, gathering two bouquets of flowers each and, marching in procession, carrying them to the Youngsville cemetery to place on the graves of two school benefactors, J.B. White and A.D. Curry.

Both men gave school buildings to the town—Mr. White the center one still in use today, and Mr. Curry an "industrial" building, torn down a few years ago to be replaced by the more modern roomier one there now. The Curry memorial stone now rests in the inner court yard created during the remodelling. The White memorial stone is still in the wall over the main entrance to the school.

Mrs. Howard Husted of West Main street remembers the custom beginning in her day as a Youngsville student - and she was a member of Youngsville's first high school graduating class. Mrs. Lewis Crippen recalls that it was still continuing in the late 1930's. Miss Janet Henry, alumna and retiring high school librarian, speculates that the custom probably fell by the wayside during a schools merger.

None of them could recall the exact date of the observance - but they all especially remembered that trilliums were the most prevalent flower in the bouquets, because they were plentifully a-bloom everywhere.

A bouquet that contained tulips was something of a status symbol!

As they marched, the children sang "O, The Pennsylvania Hills".

"It was the kind of thing you grieved about having to do - but still you remember it with affection" mused one former student.

Footnote: Perhaps another reason for the decline of the custom is that trilliums are a "protected" flower now, and not to be picked.

Jaycees' Fun Fair Success Despite Low Attendance

Although attendance generally was disappointing, despite ideal weather, the Brokenstraw Valley Jaycees and cooperating area organizations are to be congratulated on the innovative holiday weekend entertainment they provided at Island Park. It is to be hoped that the final reckoning will prove good enough to encourage them to try again another year — if not on the Memorial Day weekend, then on some other.

The amusements were fresh and attractive both in appearance and type. The antique car display flushed out jewels belonging to some enterprising local buffs. The marquee was near enough to full for the second performance of the country and western show on Saturday night to make the entertainers as appreciative of their audience as the audience was of them. These — Lester Platt and the National Grass (bluegrass, that is) — were masterful musicians of their style, the ones who created and played the theme for television's "Beverly Hillsbillies", no less.

Mac Wiseman, jocund as he was rotund, obviously had his own special following among the crowd — a large portion of it, to judge from the reception he was given.

The pony pull stirred up the dust in the tent the next day, for a good-sized group of devotees.

The Lions Club didn't sell quite all their 500 barbecued chicken halves, so when things slowed down they closed up shop (some of them having been there since 7:30 a.m.), they were ready for a break! and shared what was left between themselves. Bad luck for a few tardy families who showed up then. They missed a treat!

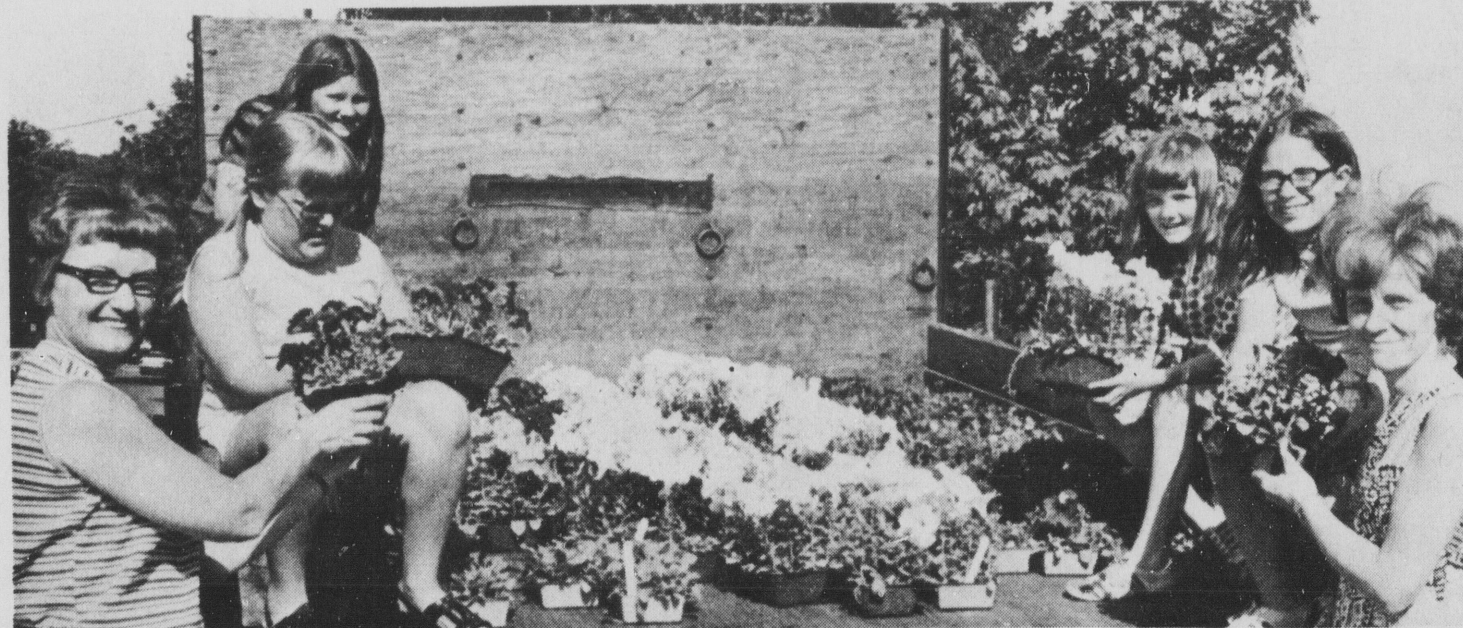

Firemen Busy

Youngsville firemen started their day at 4:30 a.m. on Monday, to get out on the streets and wash them down throughout the business district, in readiness for the Memorial Day parade. Thirty-one men showed up. At 8 a.m., ten members of the Women's Auxiliary had breakfast ready for them at the firehall.

At 10, six fire department vehicles, including the ambulance and three fire trucks, took part in the parade, with fifteen firemen plus the fire police. (This was a revival of a custom allowed to lapse during the period when they were busy building the firehall.)

In addition, there were firemen available all day in the event of emergencies, and the ambulance made one run. As if all that wasn't enough, they set up the poles and fielded a team in the water battle sponsored at Island Park by the Jaycees.

Quite a day. Quite a bunch of guys.

Girl Scouts Deliver Petunias

Youngsville Girl Scouts sorted and delivered 360 dozen petunia plants to area residents this week — a part of their recent project to revive an old custom and help keep Youngsville beautiful. Through the sale of the plants, funds were raised for

The Rev. Don McEntyre, of the Youngsville E.U.M. church told Youngsville High School graduates at the 1972 Baccalaureate service on Sunday evening that in a world which seems to have a lot of things wrong with it, they have freedom of choice, and hopefully will seek to establish a morality founded on the metaphysics of religion, the good life that does not leave out God, the giver of all good, and in their pursuit of pleasure will remember that conscience is the friend of man in his search for a better world.

Mrs. Richard Brown, Third street, Youngsville, and sons Mike and Scott attended the Indianapolis 500 mile race last Saturday, and were immediately opposite lead driver Mike Mosley when, in the 58th lap, he crashed into the wall at the fourth turn and climbed out of his vehicle ablaze.

Mosley was hospitalized for leg burns but was later reported in satisfactory condition. The Browns saw Pennsylvania Mark Donohue the eventual winner of the "Indy". They left Youngsville on Friday morning, stayed at a motel where auto racing personalities were also guests, and returned home on Sunday.

Merri Lu Gustafson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gustafson, Davis street, Youngsville, has cabled her parents that she arrived safely in London, England, where she flew last week, from New York, to take up a summer job under the auspices of the International Student Association. She expected to be employed at a seaside resort.

Merri Lu got her travel wings in 1969, when she went to Caracas, Venezuela, as the Youngsville High School AFS exchange student. She has been attending Edinboro state college off campus in Warren for the past two years.

Also abroad is Barbara Crippen, of Marsh avenue - in Germany, as a recreation director with the U.S. Army civilian Special Services division. She writes that the rural location is beautiful. She was in Germany before, when, as a French major at Otterbein college, she studied in Europe during her junior year. She was also in Vietnam with the American Red Cross, and visited Japan from there.

Kay Peterson, Youngsville High School junior, and staff member of the Broadwalk, the school newspaper, learned on Tuesday that she was awarded a certificate of merit in the St. Bonaventure Press Day contest for school newspaper personnel. Her entry was a page of poetry. Judges were staffers of the New York Times.

Church Booth

There was cotton candy, popcorn, balloons, ring toss, penny pitch — they all were available at the fair on Island Park last weekend. Many area groups participated to help make the first-time event "go" — including the Youngsville Free Methodist Church men, who sponsored the Key 73 booth in the background of the picture above, and dispensed informative literature to those who paused there.

Water Battle In Action

Whooping and hollering like Indians, the Starbrick firemen won over Tidoute first, in the water battle at Island Park on Monday — though they had to fight the barrel every inch of the way down the line — then took on Russell, who conquered

Columbus, and a couple of other area teams, to emerge top dogs in the final round. Members of the Starbrick team were Mike Patrick, Harry Rosequist, Jerry Lyon, Jim English and Tom Wood. They had their 1928 pumper along as a sort of mascot.

To Attend Week-Long Band Camp

These Youngsville High School band members, from grades 9 through 12, have signed up to attend the annual week-long band camp at Clarion State College, starting July 9. Seated, left to right, as instrumental music teacher John Smith (standing) gives them an orientation talk, are: front row, Guy Carpenter, Pauline

Specter Bares Plan To Offer Money To 'Protect' House Of Prostitution

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dist. Atty. Arlen Specter said Wednesday that a reporter for the Philadelphia Bulletin and agents of the Pennsylvania Crime Commission had discussed a plan to offer money to Philadelphia policemen in exchange for "protection" of a house of prostitution.

Specter also claimed in a petition filed in Common Pleas Court that state Atty. Gen. J. Shane Creamer had met with two women who later posed as operators of the house of prostitution and who offered money to vice squad investigators of the Philadelphia Police Department.

The allegations were made in a petition which asked a transfer from Municipal Court to Common Pleas Court for a hearing on wiretap charges Specter announced last week against Greg Walter, an investigative reporter for the Bulletin.

Creamer reacted strongly to the allegations, saying from Harrisburg, "It's beginning to look clear to us that our Crime Commission agents were set up in this matter." He termed Specter's petition as "an all-out attempt to discredit the Crime Commission investigation. But we will not be deterred or intimidated," he said.

Creamer admitted that Barbara Dunagan, one of the women mentioned in Specter's petition, had met with him, but he said she had requested to see him in connection with a payoff which, she claimed, police were demanding to keep her from being arrested.

The attorney general also denied that any Crime Commission agents had a hand in any illegal recordings of telephone conversations.

The petition gives details of alleged meetings dating back to the fall of 1971 among Walter, two special agents of the Crime Commission, Christopher Decree and Albert Risdorfer, and two women who were asked to act as undercover agents, Barbara Dunagan and Lorraine Nyeigio.

In February, according to the petition, Walter and the two agents met with the women "relating to a plan for Barbara Dunagan and Lorraine Nyeigio to contact officers of the Philadelphia Police Department to offer them money to protect a house of prostitution."

The petition said the women did not operate such a place, nor did they plan to.

Later that month, the petition continued, the women were taken to Harrisburg to meet with Creamer, who was in charge of the investigation. After meeting with Creamer, the petition said, the women met with Decree and Risdorfer at a restaurant.

"At the meeting," the petition stated, "Agent Decree asked the women to see whether any Philadelphia policemen would accept bribe money by having the girls let it be known they were prostitutes operating a house of prostitution and they were willing to pay protection to keep the 'house' open."

Creamer's account of Crime Commission involvement in the case differed markedly from Specter's version.

Last September, Creamer said, a confidential informant told the Crime Commission of an $8,000 payment to a Philadelphia police official to stop an arrest warrant for prostitution. The information was relayed back to the police department's Organized Crime Unit in October, Creamer said, and the department responded by sending two inspectors to the Crime Commission to discuss the matter.

Four months later, Creamer continued, Police inspector James Archer informed the Crime Commission that the alleged prostitute had been identified as Miss Dunagan.

According to Creamer, Archer gave the Crime Commission Miss Dunagan's address, after confiding that she had told police department officials of police payoffs totaling $30,000.

The Crime Commission then contacted Miss Dunagan, Creamer said, but she declined to discuss her original allegations.

On March 7, she apparently changed her mind, asking Decree to arrange a meeting with Creamer. The meeting took place March 10, Creamer said, when Miss Dunagan outlined details of a $16,000 payoff to prevent her arrest on prostitution charges.

She also gave a detailed statement, Creamer continued, making "numerous other specific allegations of police corruption in Philadelphia." A Justice Department source said she had implicated "several high-ranking officers."

The following week, Miss Dunagan contacted the Crime Commission again, Creamer said, this time about alleged solicitation by police officers an additional $200 bribe.

The Crime Commission then supplied the woman with "a recording device," Creamer said, to record a payoff scene at a Philadelphia lounge. The equipment was returned that night, according to Creamer.

"It looks as if an effort was made by the Philadelphia police to set us up in an attempt to discredit our investigators and the Crime Commission," Creamer said.

"Long before the arrest of Barbara Dunagan, she made serious allegations to the Crime Commission concerning police corruption in Philadelphia. I hope that the District Attorney is investigating those allegations as vigorously as he is pursuing our investigators."

Man Serious After Stabbing Near DuBois

DU BOIS—Ralph J. Bruzga, 23, of 109 N. Main st. was listed in serious condition at West Penn Hospital, Pittsburgh with a stab wound of the chest.

He was stabbed in the chest with a steak knife during a family dispute in a residence on Tozier ave. early Monday morning, according to DuBois-based state police.

Police said no arrests have been made and no charges filed as yet. Investigation is continuing.

Two Sentenced On Auto Counts In Crawford Co.

Two residents of Warren County were among 30 persons sentenced Tuesday in Crawford County Court.

Charged with driving during suspension was Thomas W. Pyle, RD 1, Grand Valley. He was sentenced on first count to pay $100 fine and costs; on second count, suspended imprisonment of three to nine months and placed on one year probation.

Clair T. Weidner, Warren, charged with driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor, was sentenced to pay $350 fine, costs and surrender his operator's license for one year.

The American Cancer Society reports that one life in three is now being saved from cancer but it could be one in two without a single new research discovery if people understood the value of early detection and prompt treatment.
